CHAPTER 9

TAXATION SUCKS THE EGGS

BY SAMUEL B. PETTINGILL

Democratic Representative in Congress for the Third Indiana District 1930-1938.

Extra! Ree-dall about it: United States Steel declares dividend of $6.61 a share to the government, or a total of $48,842,131.

Extra! Special! Steel declares dividend to its owners of nothing a share, or a total of nothing. Get a paper, mister.

That is not the way the newsboys called it. But that's the way it happened in 1938. Government got a nest egg; the owners got a goose egg.

The 168,399 common stock holders who owned United States Steel got nothing from a year's operations. The government—federal, state and local—got almost forty-nine millions. Investors had contributed their money to support bureaucrats. The pay rollers got it in the pocket; the owners got it in the neck.

These figures support the thesis that we are marching toward a species of National Socialism.

The paper titles to property will be left with their "owners," but management and earnings will be taken over by government. This is the way Hitler makes the Germans goosestep. It is not government ownership. It is not communism. No confiscation of property! You keep your hens; give us the eggs!

The American Federation of Investors has compiled the taxes and common stock dividends of 150 companies. The list includes only one company with assets of more than $5 billion.

It includes United States Steel; A. T. & T.; Armour; B. & O. R. R.; Caterpillar Tractor; Chrysler; Continental Oil; Du Pont; Eastman Kodak; Illinois Central R. R.; National Cash Register; Montgomery Ward; New York Central Railroad; Ohio Oil; Quaker Oats; R. C. A.; Secony-Vacuum; Standard of Indiana; Swift; Texas Corporation; Westinghouse and others.

In 1937, best year under the New Deal, average dividends for each share of common stock was $1.95, and the average total tax—federal, state and local—per share was $2.62 or 34 per cent more to government than to the owners. Government, which made no direct investment got more out of its operations than the investors.

Another way of putting it based on the average per company, is that before each common stockholder got anything, government got $291. Total taxes paid by 124 of these companies in 1937 were $681,648,286. In 1937 they were $1,631,284,094 or nearly a billion more. If government had not taken that extra billion, it might have employed one million men at $1,000 a year!

Money paid for taxes cannot be paid for wages, nor for raw material, nor for dividends.

On April 29, 1938, President Roosevelt sent a message to Congress from which sprang the Temporary National Economic Committee. What Mr. Roosevelt said in that message was, to me, wholly admirable. It is one of the soundest papers he has ever produced. Among other things, he wrote, "The individual must be encouraged . . . to venture his own small savings, not in stock gambling, but in new enterprise investment."

Later, on May 16, 1939, Mr. Roosevelt wrote to Senator O'Mahoney, Chairman of TNEC, a letter in which he said, "It is a matter of common knowledge that the dollars which the American people save each year are not yet finding their way back into productive enterprise in sufficient volume to keep our economic machine turning over at the rate required to bring about full employment. . . . It is our task to bring together the men, machines and money."

We know that "new enterprise investment" is not being made except in a trickle when it should be a mighty river bearing the commerce and the hope of a nation.

For the six years, 1933-1938 inclusive, new capital investment totaled less than it did for the single year 1930. It averaged $669 millions a year. For the ten years, 1923-1932 it averaged $3,739 millions a year.

Why is "new enterprise investment" not being made? Certainly one of the correct answers is that taxation sucks the eggs.—Copyright, 1940, by Samuel B. Pettingill.

WILLKIE CHALLENGES ROOSEVELT'S STATEMENT ON KEEPING OUT OF WAR

France Will Not Join in War on England

Such a Step Is Out Of the Question High, French Officials Say

Acknowledge Important Negotiations with Germany Bearing on Future of Fallen Republic

VICHY, France, Oct. 22 — Any talk of France joining in the war against England — or any other country — is out of the question. French officials declared emphatically tonight.

They acknowledged that important negotiations, which may have a bearing on the future of the fallen republic, are under way somewhere in France but that "they still are not finished."

Just what the conferences are all about, government quarters declined to say. A foreign office spokesman made plain, however, that France has no idea of taking up arms against her former ally.

Foreign Minister Paul Baudouin earlier had expressed the hope that France would engage in "frank and total" post-war collaboration with Germany—because, he said, any other course would be "imbecile, insane and absurd."

Peace Terms Unfinished
Baudouin mentioned his hopes in connection with a peace to be signed in a matter of "months."

While important negotiations were being conducted somewhere in the German-occupied area of France, Vichy officials refused to discuss them except to say, "they still are not finished."

The Vichy cabinet met last night but permitted no hint that matters discussed were other than routine.

Vichy correspondents, however, apparently were unable to send direct comment on Tuesday's conference between Hitler, Vice-Premier Laval of France and German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop.

France can also find the basis of an understanding with the United States, Baudouin told American correspondents, through the pursuit of her "old ideals of humanity, liberty, justice, order and truth."

Geographically and economically, French and German collaboration will be a European necessity once a "just" peace is signed, he asserted.

Hitler May Be Sorry if France Fights England

What Germany Has in Mind About Conquered Nation Is a Secret

By JOHN EVANS
Associated Press Chief of Foreign Service

Hitler may get France as his ally to fight England, but if he does there's a fair chance he will wish he hadn't.

It still is someone's secret exactly what Germany has in mind about conquered France, but British Prime Minister Churchill showed Monday he thought France might be tempted to join the Axis. He asked directly of all Frenchmen that "if you cannot help us, at least you will not hinder us."

Hitler can offer attractive terms to aged Marshal Petain if Petain is satisfied Hitler will win the war. He can promise France that her old empire shall remain almost as it was, Germany taking only the disputed Alsace-Lorraine and the disputed colonies which France took from Germany after the last war. This would be the more tempting because Petain might think France would fare equally well if England should win.

The stake:
1. France as an Axis ally could (Continued on Page Eleven)

Knox Says More Naval Bases To Be Secured in The Pacific

Says Navy Must Have Bases from Which To Operate; Reports Gains in Sea Power

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (AP)—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox indicated today the United States may assume a more expanding role in the Pacific, asserting that "we have Pacific bases xxx but we need more—and we will have them."

"How far flung these xxx must be awaits the outcome of events now in the making," he added.

Knox made the statement in an address before the annual New York Herald Tribune annual forum on current affairs.

A great, sea-going, far-ranging Navy consists of more than ships and men," Knox continued. "It must have bases from which to operate."

He did not disclose any details of what negotiations—if any—might be going forward for acquisition of additional bases or in what parts of the Pacific these might lie.

Sea Power Gains Made
"Immense gains in sea power have already been made," Knox added.

Among these, he said, was the acquisition of eight new Atlantic bases which "added tremendously to our naval strength in the Atlantic. These, with those already held, make our Atlantic defense well nigh impregnable."

The bases were obtained by leases from Great Britain when the United States recently sent fifty destroyers to Britain.

Other speakers described the quickened pace of defense preparations by land and in the air, in the nation's industries and homes.

Robert P. Patterson, assistant secretary of war, said that "by March of 1942, we shall have an army fit to meet any challenge, backed by a (Continued on Page Eleven)

Hitler Seeking To Mass French Fleet with Axis

BERLIN, Oct. 22—Adolf Hitler received Vice Premier Pierre Laval of France somewhere in French territory today, it was announced officially tonight, climaxing indications of a developing attempt to mass the surviving French warships with those of Germany and Italy for a showdown with the British fleet.

No details of the Hitler-Laval conference were disclosed, save that it was attended also by German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop, already reported assigned to the job of seeking to get France to enter the war against her old ally.

In Vichy a foreign office spokesman said Tuesday night that there is "absolutely no question of France negotiating with a view to fighting England or any other country."

The meeting presumably was held in German-occupied France. Laval has made several trips to Paris as the emissary of the Vichy government to the German military authorities there.

The German wireless, in a report broadcast under date of Istanbul, also asserted that French authorities in Syria had declared the French army there to be "complete-ly in a position to protect Syria" possible Axis-British battlefront in the Near East.

John L. Lewis To Break Political Silence Friday

CIO Chief Will Speak over the Three Major Radio Networks

By GREGORY HEWLETT

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (AP)—CIO Chief John L. Lewis, head of a labor organization claiming 4,000,000 members, will break his silence on the political situation Friday night, but a first-rate mystery developed today over whether Wendell Willkie relinquished radio time to give Lewis a larger audience.

This much was known: That the half-hour spot on one network (MBS) taken by Lewis had previously been reserved for the Republican presidential candidate—and then cancelled. But all Republican sources were officially silent as to whether the moves were connected.

In the solution lay the tipoff on what Lewis, former supporter and recent critic of President Roosevelt and the New Deal, might say. If Willkie intentionally gave up time for Lewis, that is, it would seem to indicate that Lewis might be planning either to come out for Willkie or renew his criticism of the administration.

Lewis has reserved the 9 to 9:30 p. m. (EST) period on the three major networks—NBC, CBS and MBS—to give him an outlet through approximately 300 stations reaching a potential audience, radio (Continued on Page Eleven)

110 Planes Built for Sweden Are Requisitioned by the President

Action Taken on Ground They Are Needed for National Defense

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP)—One hundred and ten pursuit and bomber planes manufactured for Sweden were requisitioned by the United States government today on the ground that they were needed for national defense.

Announcing the action, the State Department said that "appropriate authorities" had sought to purchase the planes from the Swedish government but when this attempt failed they had decided to requisition them under an executive order issued by President Roosevelt on Oct. 15.

The planes, the statement said, were required by the Army Air Corps. Sweden, the department added, had protested the requisitioning through its legation here.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 22—In one of the mightiest attacks yet made upon a single Nazi area, the Air Ministry reported today, a thousand British fire bombs and vast loads of explosives have been dropped upon Hamburg, where German warships are under construction.

This violent assault, illustrating the rising tempo of a counter-offensive which Britain's leaders expect to maintain through the winter in the hope of seizing the initiative next spring, was declared to have left a chain of fires which eventu- (Continued on Page Eleven)

Japan May Resort To Armed Force To Obtain Oil

TOKYO, Oct. 23 (Wednesday) (AP)—The Japanese newspaper Asahi indicated today that negotiations to obtain oil from the Netherlands East Indies had failed and suggested, "we must resort to armed force."

Although details of an oil agreement which the Japanese said was concluded with the Netherlands East Indies Saturday (and which officials at Batavia denied only yesterday) were not disclosed, the Japanese press seemed to believe the matter was still unsatisfactory.

Failure, as usual, was attributed to British and American machinations, and London's reiteration that Britain has contracted for the Indies' high-grade gasoline heightened this sentiment.

Asahi criticized the return to Tokyo of Japanese Commerce Minister Ichizo Kobayashi, who has been negotiating in Batavia, and said, "to bring the East Indies over to our side we either must show them it is clearly against their interests to rely on Britain and the United States, or we must resort to armed force and make them comply."

"No matter how we might try to reason with the Dutch, it would be a sheer waste of time and energy unless the Anglo-American policy changes."

The newspaper Yomiuri scoffed at the British reports that Britain had (Continued on Page Two)

Says President Has Not Kept Faith with People Of the United States

Willkie Gives Three Reasons Why He Should Be President

GOP Nominee Also Reiterates His Stand for More Effective Aid to Great Britain

CHICAGO, Oct. 22 (AP)—

Wendell Willkie declared tonight that if he were elected president of the United States, he would "make every effort in my power to see" that the possibility of a third term for a president was made impossible by "the passage of a constitutional amendment that will bar for all time another grasp for absolute power."

"If I could persuade the American people that the third term for any administration—and particularly this administration—is dangerous to our American way of life, then indeed I would believe I had rendered a great service to my country," Willkie said.

Willkie asked the voters of the nation to send him to the White House "to preserve our American system of government and free enterprise—to keep us out of war—and to speed up our defenses."

At another point in a nationally broadcast (NBC) interview from his campaign railway car, the Republican presidential candidate reiterated his stand for "more effective (Continued on Page Eleven)

Reckord Believes Guard To Be Out More Than a Year

Says Draft Law Should Be Changed To Protect Guard Status

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP)—Belief that mobilized units of the National Guard would be held on active duty beyond their projected year of Federal service was expressed today by Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, Maryland state adjutant general.

Speaking at the National Guard Association's convention, Reckord also declared that unless the new draft law is amended to protect the guards' traditional federal-state status, it would be reduced to a home-defense force.

He said he believed that if the guard were released from federal service at the end of the year's training, its function as a manpower reserve for the regular army ultimately would be taken over by the trainees from the draft program.

Reckord predicted "confusion" would result if the guard were demobilized at the end of its year of duty because its ranks would include many draftees whose training had not been completed.

"It almost makes you think that they do not expect us to come home at the end of the year," he said. (Continued on Page Two)

Republican Nominee Says He Would Protect Foreign Affairs from Partisan Politics

By WILLIAM ARDERY

CHICAGO, Oct. 22 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie demanded tonight that President Roosevelt tell the people whether he (Willkie) had "falsified the record" in contending that the New Deal failed to keep pledges for a sound currency, improved world trade, lower taxes and federal economy.

Speaking in the convention hall where Mr. Roosevelt was renominated for a third term, the Republican presidential nominee was interrupted by prolonged cheering when he said:

"Recently the third term candidate has accused me of deliberately falsifying the record. That seems to me a strange accusation. From what I have seen on the record, and I have studied it closely, any misstatement of the facts would be a charitable act."

Willkie challenged the president's pledge to keep the war away from the United States, saying:

"If his promise to keep us from foreign wars is no better than his promise to balance the budget, the boys are already practically on transports."

Roosevelt's Name Boomed
The noisy crowd boomed mention of Mr. Roosevelt's name and the names of other New Dealers.

Making several declarations that the New Deal had failed to keep specific campaign pledges, Willkie repeatedly said:

"Mr. third term candidate, when you begin your belated discussion of campaign issues tomorrow night, I would like you to tell the people whether Wendell Willkie is falsifying that part of the record."

"This is the record," Willkie shouted. "We have stopped growing. Our national income is smaller. Our workers get less. Our farmers get less. More than nine million of our citizens are without jobs. We have little equipment for our army, and we have only a few hundred modern military airplanes. "Yet in these seven and a half years (of the New Deal) we have spent more than $60,000,000,000. We have doubled the national debt. And the enormous defense program lies ahead of us."

"That is the record. I challenge the third term candidate to prove it false."

After ending his prepared talk, Willkie asserted that "this free government is in the hands of people who disregard their promises with a cynicism almost despicable."

Speaks of Simple Virtues

"I call America back to the simple virtues," he continued, "and I pray that in this year 1940 we will replace this cynical government with one that believes in the people and their simple virtues. xxx

"The fight is hard. xxx It (the administration) expects to use the billions appropriated for national defense xxx It expects to put pressure on those in the pitiful circumstance of life receiving relief."

"But, people of Chicago, are you afraid?"

The crowd shouted, "No." There was loud cheering when Willkie concluded with the statement that (Continued on Page Eleven)

Roosevelt Has Made Forecast On Election

Says He Would Not Change Prediction He Made Three Weeks Ago

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP)—President Roosevelt said today he had made a forecast of the presidential election outcome three weeks ago and that if he should make another at this time it would be substantially the same.

He made this statement at a press conference in reply to a question whether his election predictions were "still conservative."

He did not reveal any details, merely disclosing that his last forecast was made about three weeks ago. Then he added if he should redo it today there would be very little change.

The chief executive confirmed that a definite engagement had been made for him to speak from 9 to 9:30 p. m., E.S.T., November 1, in the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

This date does not necessarily supplant a previous speaking engagement for the night of October 30. The president told reporters that date was being kept open either for himself or some other party spokesman.

It was announced previously that Mr. Roosevelt might speak either in Washington or Baltimore on October 30, but when Democratic leaders found that Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican nominee, had reserved the only suitable hall in Baltimore for that date it was said at the White House that the president would not speak there.

The president, who will start a final pre-election drive with a speech tomorrow night in Philadelphia, said he did not believe he would go into Maryland to make an address before election.

He gave that information in response to a question whether Governor Herbert R. O'Connor of Maryland, who called on him earlier in the day, had suggested such an appearance. O'Connor told reporters the president would be welcome in Maryland, but Mr. Roosevelt said no invitation was issued and he did not think he could get there anyway.

Asked whether he could indicate the trend of the remarks to be made in a radio address Friday night by John L. Lewis, CIO chief, who called on him recently, Mr. Roosevelt said he had not the faintest idea.

He is expected to go directly from his Brooklyn speech to make an address at Cleveland the next night. If he has time he will stop off at Rochester and Buffalo, N. Y., to visit defense industries.

Moser To Review Parole Cases of 76 Prisoners

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 22 (AP)—Six prisoners convicted of murder—two of whom are serving life terms—are among seventy-six convicts who will have their cases reviewed tomorrow by Parole Director Herman M. Moser.

Frank Smith and Thomas Brooks negro, are serving life terms for first-degree murder. Smith was convicted in 1917 of killing Abraham Edelman, Baltimore mule dealer, in Anne Arundel county.

Parole documents show that Edelman had gone to Smith's farm to collect money for some mules he sold. His body later was found buried in a field.

Brooks was convicted of first-degree murder in Baltimore in 1927.

The others convicted of murder are Robert Ganshorn, Jimmy Buns and Raymond Robins and Clarence Stephens, both negroes.

Prisoners convicted in the following counties also will be among those to be given parole consideration: Robert Sponaugle, 3 years, rape in Allegany county; Ralph Fletcher, 2 years on a "breaking into" charge placed in Washington county.

Italians Report Naval Victory Over England

ROME, Oct. 22 (AP)—Italians officially claimed today a naval victory over the British in the Southern Red sea yesterday, reporting that six merchant ships were sunk and an 8,000-ton cruiser of the Sydney class damaged seriously at a cost to the Italians of only one damaged torpedo boat.

The high command said fast torpedo boats made three separate attacks on the convoy of merchant ships after it was spotted by scouting planes. The battle raged from midnight until dawn, a communique said, when "effective fire" from island coastal batteries "repeatedly hit seriously damaged" the cruiser which presumably was helping guard the merchantmen.

The cruiser, the Italians added, later was seen stopped off the coast "in serious difficulties, while other British warships hastened to her aid."

Berlin Reports Bombing of London And Other Cities

Says Particular Heavy Damage Inflicted on Airplane Works

By The Associated Press. BERLIN, Oct. 22 (AP)—Fast, bomb-laden fighter planes raided London, Liverpool, Birmingham and other important British centers last night and left huge fires which still were blazing in London this morning, German sources reported tonight.

The German high command declared the raids were "retaliatory," but reported that British night raiders caused no military damage in attacks on Germany and German-occupied territory.

The high command said Nazi plane crews inflicted particularly heavy damage on airplane works in Leyland, North of Liverpool, and two armament works. Other targets were troop concentrations, airports, warehouses and port facilities.

DNE, official German news agency, said that fires attacking South England and approaching London this morning saw fires in the capital still burning after the forty-fifth overnight assault last night.

A German radio broadcast heard in New York by NBC said that railroad traffic served by the important English junctions of Deal and Bexhill had been "paralyzed" to a large extent by bomb hits.

(Railway tracks and warehouses also were damaged and fired at Folkestone, the report said, and one German plane scored several bomb hits on a pier at Dover.)

As the air war raged, German raiders prepared to remove children from Berlin to other parts of the Reich, especially the Eastern provinces.

The railroads will run seventy-five special trains in the next nine days. A large part of the children taken from British-bombed Berlin will be sent to the Wartheland district in East Prussia and nearby Polish territory.

German newspapers said Royal Air Force bombers struck the residential quarter of Hamburg last night and damaged a great number of buildings, as well as killing or wounding an unannounced number of civilians.

Navy Is Calling Reserves and Retired Men for Shore Duty

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP)—The Navy is dipping with increasing frequency into its reservoir of reserves and retired officers to help man the naval establishment ashore and keep regular personnel free for duty with the expanding fleet.

Back of the 200,300 officers and men in the regular Navy and Marine Corps is a pool of 76,000 officers and men in various reserve groups and on the retired officers list.

All of these, excepting 1,500 of the 3,500 of retired officers, who are disqualified by extreme age or physical disabilities, are subject to call for active duty in an emergency.

Already, some 2,250 officers of the Naval reserve, 450 of the Marine Corps reserves and 900 retired officers have been placed on active duty on a voluntary basis.

Furthermore, the navy has called up most of the 14,000 men of its fleet reserve, an organization of former enlisted men.

And now the organized reserves, comprising officers and men who have received a retainer in peacetime for drilling regularly together, are being ordered to duty gradually on a compulsory basis.

On Oct. 6, Secretary Knox gave notice to the 1,200 officers and 11,000 enlisted men in the organized naval reserve, and to the 400 officers and 6,500 men in the organized Marine Corps Reserves, that orders to active duty would be forthcoming for them shortly.

In some cases, the reserves and retired officers placed on active duty will shore jobs newly-created by the Navy's expansion. In other instances they relieve regular officers from existing office posts.

Easton Ministers Oppose Liquor Dispensary System

EASTON, Md., Oct. 22 (AP)—The Easton Ministerial Association has voted to come out against the liquor dispensary system proposed for Talbot county, the Rev. Carlton Harris, association president, said today.

Under the liquor dispensary law, passed by the 1939 legislature, subject to a referendum of Talbot county voters in the Nov. 5 election, dispensaries would be set up at Easton, St. Michaels and Trappe and other branches could be subsidized by the Liquor Control Board.

Proponents of the dispensaries have contended revenue from them might result in a lowering of the tax rate, but Mr. Harris said the association felt the system would do the county more harm than good.

Forty Hour Week Will Be Effective On Thursday

Will Mean Shorter Work Week or Overtime for 2,000,000 Workers

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP)—The beginning of the forty-hour standard work week under the Wage-Hour law, Thursday will mean a shorter week or overtime pay for some 2,000,000 workers in interstate industry, wage-hour officials estimated today.

They said this was the number of workers who could be found in any week of average industrial activity working more than forty hours without getting overtime wages at the rate of time and a half.

Approximately 700,000 more, they said, work more than forty hours also, but are paid time and a half as a matter of practice or contract.

Under the forty-hour week plan, which replaces the present forty-two hour week, these 2,000,000 will either have their working time cut by two hours, or be paid time and a half for work done beyond forty hours.

The forty-hour week is the final step in the evolution of a fixed standard work week under the Wage-Hour act.

When the law went into operation in 1938, it called for a forty-four hour week and time and a half for overtime. In October, 1939, the week became forty-two hours.

Revised regulations defining exempted white collar workers also became effective Thursday. Wage hour authorities estimate that more than 200,000 such workers will be excluded from the maximum hour and overtime requirements of the law.

The change to a forty-hour week will not affect railroad workers, or truck and bus drivers whose operations are not covered by the hours provision of the act. Retail and service employees likewise are not affected.

The act is applicable only to persons engaged in interstate commerce or the production of goods for interstate commerce.

Three Devices To Record National Draft Lottery

Will Be Used To Prevent Inaccuracies and Protect Draft-Age Men

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP)—Three devices will be employed next Tuesday to make an unalterable record of the national draft lottery in an effort to prevent inaccuracies and to protect the interests of draft-age men.

National selective service headquarters announced today that:

1. A speed camera will make a photograph of each serial number on a strip of miniature film in the order in which each one is drawn from the big glass bowl in the departmental auditorium. Photographed with the actual number itself will be a clock showing the exact time and date it was drawn.

2. Each number as it is drawn will be fastened to a gummed sheet of cardboard which will become a permanent master record of the draft order numbers.

3. Each sheet of the master record, with 100 numbers to each sheet, will be photographed, and from those photographs will be made printing plates. The plates will be used to print copies of the master list for distribution to the 6,500 local selective service boards throughout the country.

Each number will be called out over a public address system with amplifiers inside and outside the auditorium and will be posted on a blackboard for spectators inside the hall. News agencies will speed the numbers across country to thousands of newspapers, and radio will pick up the calling of the lottery.

The master list of serial numbers will determine the order in which men will be called to service from every local board area, unless they volunteer or are deferred.

Arrangements for the drawing, which will be started by Secretary Stimson in the presence of President Roosevelt at noon October 29, proceeded rapidly at national headquarters today.

On Friday afternoon, a crew of six people will start the 36-hour task of stuffing serial numbers in non-transparent, blue-lined capsules. When filled, the capsules will be locked in a safe under military guard.

It is not yet known exactly how many numbers, ranging from one up, will be needed, but enough will be dumped into the "goldfish bowl" to cover the largest number of registrants in any one local board area, with some additional to take care of late registrations, errors and transfers.

The number is expected to run over 7,500, and twelve to fifteen hours, beginning shortly after noon, will be required to draw all of them.

Delegate Proposes Safe Driving Be Taught in Schools

S. D. Kolb Will Introduce Bill in Next Session of Legislature

SALISBURY, Md., Oct. 22 (AP)—Right and left turns and how to get out of traffic jams may be added to the academic schedules of Maryland high school students, under a plan proposed today by Delegate S. D. Kolb of Salisbury.

Kolb said he would offer a bill at the next session of the legislature making a course in "safe driving" mandatory for high school students. Maryland state policemen would act as practical instructors.

The announcement followed the withdrawal of state police as instructors in a course taught in Eastern Shore high schools. Regular teachers had conducted the classroom work. Superintendent of Schools James M. Bennett said that as a result, the course would be curtailed this year and probably abandoned next year.

In his announcement, Kolb said he was "alarmed" when he understood that co-operation of the Maryland State Police had been withdrawn from the safe driving course as originated here.

"We had all felt," he said, "that the program had become an established feature in Maryland as Governor O'Connor has shown so much interest in it."

"Now apparently his support is withdrawn for certainly the State Police would not adopt such an arbitrary attitude unless they knew they had the backing of the governor and his safety committee."

"It does not seem to me any great effort for the Maryland State Police to provide officers for most any event, whereas, in my opinion, the saving of life should be of paramount importance to any individual whether in an official or unofficial capacity."

"Many members of the legislature are aware of this, and, if not almost hostility, by many officials in this administration toward safe driving."

"My intention is to introduce a bill in the next session of the legislature to make safe driving a mandatory course in the high schools of Maryland in co-operation with the Maryland State Police as practical instructors."

Industrialist Says Partnership with God Pays Dividends

R. G. Letourneau Rises from Bankruptcy to Millions in 12 Years

CHICAGO, Oct. 22 (AP)—An industrialist who says his board chairman and majority stockholder is God related today how he rose from bankruptcy to a millionaire's rating in twelve years.

"I am convinced that man can make his best living as well as his best life in partnership with God," R. G. Letourneau (Capt.) told an emergency conference of Christian business and professional men.

Letourneau, who flew to Chicago in his own airplane, heads factories in Peoria, Georgia and California, employing 2,000 men in construction of road-building machinery.

"I had a little foundry back in the boom period that was doing a modest business," he recalled. "Then the depression flattened me out. I was bankrupt and several thousands in debt. In my extremity I turned to the Lord for guidance. I promised a part of my income for missions."

"I started going again on faith, not knowing how I would meet the payroll. It seemed I couldn't make both the payroll and the pledge for missions, but each time prayer opened the way."

"The Letourneau Foundation now owns 67.5 per cent of the 450,000 shares in the company and uses the income for missionary and evangelistic purposes. Last year with the Lord as chairman of our board, we made $1,816,470 but that money didn't go for private profit. Nineteen-tenths of it was used in spreading the teachings of the chairman of our board."

He said the foundation was rated at $13,000,000 and the company's sales last year amounted to $7,731,325.

Farley Announces

Campaign Manager, at the Hotel Biltmore, which houses both the Democratic state and national committees.

Nowhere in the brief statement did Farley, who has hitherto taken no active part in the campaign and was himself an announced presidential candidate before the Chicago convention, mention President Roosevelt by name. Farley himself was not available for comment.

Farley's statement follows:

"Thirty-one years ago today I was elected chairman of the Democratic town committee in Stony Point, Rockland county, N. Y., and down through the years I have served as chairman of my county committee, chairman of my state committee and I am still serving as chairman of the Democratic state committee of New York."

"It was my great honor to serve as chairman of the Democratic National Committee during the two great campaigns of 1932 and 1936. I deeply appreciate the honors that have been paid me by my party and I shall ever be grateful to the party workers for the loyalty and devotion I have always received during my years of party activities."

"During the period outlined above, I have preached party loyalty and pleaded for the success of my party. I did that because I sincerely believe in the Democratic party, in its principles and objectives."

"At the National Convention of the Democratic party in Chicago—at which I was a candidate for the presidency—after the balloting was over I pledged my support to the nominees of that convention. That pledge was made in good faith. I shall vote the straight Democratic ticket on November 5, and urge the members of my party to do likewise."

Following the Chicago convention, Farley resigned as postmaster general in President Roosevelt's cabinet and also as national chairman of the party, being succeeded by Edward J. Flynn, Bronx Democratic leader.

Dailey said that Farley had handed him the statement and had instructed him to release it to the press.

Holt Flays Use of Ambassadors in Political Campaign

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP)—Senator Holt (D-W.Va.) charged today that envoys to three war-torn nations had been "brought away from their posts of duty to spread fear for political purposes."

He named William C. Bullitt, ambassador to France, Anthony Biddle, ambassador to Poland, and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, minister to Norway, in a statement in which he asserted:

"The wholesale use of ambassadors, ministers and and foreign service officers in this political campaign to whip up hysteria is so vicious and detestable that one cannot describe it in words."

Fighter Squadron Routs Formation Of Nazi Bombers

Saves London from All but Mere "Flea-Bite Attacks"

LONDON, Oct. 23 (AP)—(Wednesday)—A dead gray haze and an alert fighter squadron which routed a big formation of German warplanes over the Southeast coast combined last night to save London from all but mere "flea-bite attacks" and gave the city one of its lightest nights since the beginning of the long air siege.

The alarm here sounded just after dusk and by midnight the all-clear heralded a calm early morning.

The nightly alarm came just after dusk and by midnight the all-clear had sounded. It was but a brief period of quiet, however, for in the early morning the Nazis appeared yet again to renew the assault.

But this second raid lasted only a brief time, and no bombs were heard.

Four Nazi planes were unofficially reported to have been downed in the great evening battle over the Kentish Cliffs, but the night official communique mentioned three destroyed against British losses of six.

The only detonations heard in the London area past midnight were those of the anti-aircraft guns and the occasional explosion of light bombs. No big bombs fell.

The Southeast coast engagement involved more than a hundred planes, according to the estimates of ground watchers.

The attacking force included a formation of German bombers escorted by numerous Messerschmidt fighter-bombers, and was split quickly into many small and struggling units which were declared to have fled.

"I watched them streaking back to France," said a witness. "They weren't in formation any more—just going any way to get home."

Other Nazis were over the North-west Coast. From one town in the Southeast came reports that raiders had machine-gunned a bus.

During the day there had been only two alarms here—both in the afternoon—and in the main part of the city, at least, not a single bomb was reported dropped.

As nearly always, the Southeast coast was not so fortunate. A town in that area was dive-bombed and there were several casualties.

The day brought a disclosure that one more ancient London structure, Middle Temple hall in the Temple Inns of Court, had been damaged by a bomb which smashed through a wall and destroyed much of the interior wood carving. The hall is one of four such inns of court which are the seats of legal societies active since the thirteenth century.

Payrolls and Employment Increase in September

BALTIMORE, Oct. 22 (AP)—Maryland factory payrolls and employment, spurred by national defense requirements, ran far above 1939 levels last month, the State Department of Labor and statistics reported today.

Commissioner John M. Pohlhaus made public the regular September summary, showing employment more than ten per cent above September, 1939, and payrolls up 17.4 per cent.

From August to September, the change showed employment up only 1.2 per cent—compared with the average increase of 2.6 per cent for those months—while payrolls climbed 3.2 per cent, well above the 2.5 average gain.

However, Pohlhaus noted, the gains were general, "affecting almost all industries in either employment or payrolls or both."

Sharp gains were recorded by several industries over 1939 figures, particularly in the manufacture of electrical machinery. Employment in this line showed a jump of more than sixty-seven per cent over September a year ago, and payrolls had gained over seventy-nine per cent.

Manufacture of aircraft and parts, also reflecting national defense contracts, was running more than fifty-four per cent ahead of 1939 in jobs and more than fifty-five per cent in payrolls.

contracted for the Indies' gasoline, but declared, "a firmer front by Japan against Britain is now considered inevitable."

Meanwhile, Domei Japanese News Agency, reported that Capt. Aginichi Torio, naval attaché of the Japanese legation at Bangkok, Thailand (Siam) had been ordered home by plane. No reason was given.

At the Japanese foreign office, Yakichiro Suma, the official spokesman, said there had been no hitch in Japan's oil negotiations with the Netherlands East Indies, that talks were continuing, and that Kobayashi would return to Batavia.

Suma also expressed ignorance concerning London reports on the oil situation. Asked whether he had any official information on alleged obstruction tactics of Britain and the United States, he said he was unable to comment, but that "our people naturally are greatly interested."

Home Treatment of Arthritis Is Outlined by Medical Association

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the first of four articles, to appear consecutively on this page, by Dr. Clendening dealing with Home Treatment for Arthritis. Dr. Clendening will discuss the different kinds of arthritis, chemical, infectious and degenerative, and the Home Treatments likely to help them.

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

It would be numerically impossible to take care of all arthritis patients in the United States in hospitals and, in fact, it is a fair statement to say that there are not enough doctors in the country to give adequate attention to all the arthritis sufferers and tend to the rest of the sick also. At any rate, a great deal of what the patient with arthritis has done in the way of treatment, he either does himself or some member of the family does it. The American Medical Association recognizes this and has just published a recommended list of measures in physical therapy that can be carried out at home.

Everybody, even the patient with arthritis, recognizes that physical treatment is the best for the condition. Physical therapy includes the use of heat and cold, manipulation and exercise of some kind. Every arthritis learns that the use of pills and medicines is of only temporary benefit, and besides is likely to upset the stomach. It's all right to say climate and a special sanitarium for arthritis, but that is beyond the means of most people and besides, in my opinion, the benefits of climate are over-rated. Altogether I am very much in favor of the home treatment for arthritis.

Different Types of Arthritis

Of course, all arthritis is not the same. There are different kinds of arthritis, such as chemical and infectious and degenerative. Some cases which are thought to be arthritis are not arthritis at all, but simply an injury such as a dislocated knee cartilage, or a small bone fracture. But in the course of time even these traumatic forms of arthritis have two characteristics that all forms of arthritis have—they are painful and there is limitation of motion. And no matter what the cause or classification, those are the symptoms that physical treatments are likely to help.

I intend to describe more physical methods of treatment of arthritis this week. One will be on manipulation, one on the use of heat and cold, and one on exercise. But first there is some general advice which the arthritic patient should take to heart. The most important pieces of such advice are the counsel of patience; map out a program of treatment and stick to it.

Victim Is Unfortunate

The patient with arthritis is in one or two respects the most unfortunate person on earth—everybody can see he is limping or else is crippled in the hands, and everybody wants to give him advice and he can't even walk away from it. His mind tends to become very changeable.

I recently heard a man who is at the head of a large business organization telling with great earnestness about some machine for the cure of arthritis. As I got it, if you stand in front of the machine with a glass of tomato juice in one hand and an orange in the other, they have different potentialities and the machine can tell what kind of arthritis you have. Then you put them down and roll over and the machine treats you for it. This man didn't know whether the machine was electricity or what it was. If somebody tried to sell him the same kind of idea about his business he would be hustled out in no time.

Now I don't care what he does with his arthritis. But what he was doing is typical of the kind of advice the poor arthritic patient is always getting. And it puts him off the track and keeps him mixed up.

Tomorrow: Manipulation for Arthritis

"Lavender, who'll buy my lavender?" is one of the oldest English street cries. Lavender is also native to Spain and was introduced into France by Charlemagne. It is used as a linen freshener for sachets and soothing baths.

Jealousy Brings In-Law-Trouble, Writer Declares

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The root of all—or nearly all—In-Law trouble is jealousy.

That unlovely hangover from our cave ancestry, or even an earlier ancestry, when we swung about jungles and bashed enemies with cocoanuts, is a form of fear. We're jealous because we don't want the other person, especially an In-Law, to get the better of us or appear to do so.

We don't want the In-Law to be more popular or display more worldly prosperity than we have. Also, we don't want the In-Law to interfere with our way of life, offer suggestions or receive confidences of In-Laws who don't approve of us—hence the Green-Eyed Monster rampant.

Plenty of Dents

Case History: That of young Mrs. X. Poisoned with jealousy not only of her mother-in-law but her own mother. Mrs. X offers no Dents, but her case history offers plenty of them. She is 24, naturally pretty. Blonde, averse, wearing her clothes like a fashion mannikin. Mrs. X regards the world as her oyster. Her husband was dumfounded when she confided children were a nuisance and she didn't want any. Housekeeping bored her. She insisted on an apartment hotel with a good dining-room attached. She doesn't like evenings at home. If she can go somewhere to dance, play bridge or go to the movies.

Mr. X, generally puzzled, sought counsel of his own mother, a Victorian type whose housekeeping was a joy and who had raised a family of six children successfully. Mr. X's mother suggested a baby as a solvent of marital difficulties. Young Mrs. X raged, threw tantrums and was threatened with a nervous breakdown, because her husband went too frequently to see his mother.

Other Mother's View

So young Mr. X, distraught because his wife was jealous of his mother, dropped her a confidante and went to see his wife's mother. Surely Birdie wouldn't be jealous of her own mother, and the cruel talk about apron-strings would be dropped. What was the trouble with Birdie and how did she get that way? What could there have been in her past life that conjured up these hideous nightmares about her husband's own mother? He didn't know anything about "mother fixation" or "maternal patterns" or any of the nonsense Birdie accused him of after attending lectures on psychoanalysis at the "Ladies' Leisure Hour Club."

His mother-in-law threw up her hands. "The trouble is Birdie missed a lot of spankings. Her father was a fool about her and wouldn't let her be corrected. Son, you have my sympathy. A baby would be a cure, but she's too busy running around to have one." Both mothers-in-law suggested a baby; there must be something in that.

Jealousy Shifted

The end of this domestic situation is hilarious. The young husband had so many interviews with his mother-in-law that Birdie shifted her jealousy from her husband's mother to her own. She was furious. What did he mean by going there to call, talking to her mother about her? So, in her whole undisciplined outlook on life, she backtracked, formed a partnership with her husband's mother and temporarily went back on her own mamma.

But before the year was out, the stork decided to bring peace to this jealousy-ridden combination of In-Laws, and dropped an eight-pound, three-ounce boy. And now everyone seems to be reconciled—Birdie, who no longer has time to attend lectures on psychoanalysis and absorb talks on "mother fixation," the two beaming mothers-in-law and the young father. The baby just smiles impartially on them all. Such is life.

IMAGINE! A CRISP AND DELICIOUS BREAKFAST CEREAL INSTEAD OF "DOSES" TO COMBAT CONSTIPATION!

HAVE YOU TRIED ALL-BRAN'S "BETTER WAY"?

EASY TO TAKE! Just compare a breakfast bowl of crisp KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN plus sugar and cream, and maybe some fruit, with the usual remedies for constipation due to lack of "bulk." Is it any wonder that a million people every day choose ALL-BRAN'S "better way"?

IF YOU SUFFER from the common kind of constipation (due to lack of the right kind of "bulk" in the diet), here's a happy thought.

WHY DEPEND on remedies that may offer only temporary relief, when you can get at the cause of the trouble and correct it by regularly eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN for breakfast?

Have you tried ALL-BRAN'S "better way" to combat constipation due to lack of "bulk" in the diet? When you use this wholesome, delicious breakfast cereal regularly, you win on two counts. First, you both correct the trouble and prevent its recurrence—by getting at its cause. That's a whole lot better way than suffering first, and then seeking temporary relief through medicines. And, second, it is many times more pleasant to eat this crisp, delicious cereal for breakfast than to depend on continual "dosing." Eat it regularly, drink plenty of water, and see if you don't forget about constipation.

Be sure, however, to get the genuine KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. Accept no substitute. ALL-BRAN is backed by 20 years of experience and millions of satisfied users. It is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek, sold by every grocer.

A Conscripted Bill That Should Be Killed

THE COURSE toward National Socialism that the New Dealers have been trying to shove this country is well exemplified in the Lee wealth conscription bill.

Many have forgotten about that pending measure, believing it was put in limbo when the regular conscription bill was debated and the section providing for government acquisition of industrial plants was inserted and amended under popular pressure. Yet the Lee bill is very much alive, stands on the consent calendar of the Senate, having been approved by committee after the hearing of but two witnesses, one of them Senator Lee himself, and can be called up at any time if the necessary Senate support is mustered.

The Lee bill is described within the document itself as a measure "to promote peace and national defense through a more equitable distribution of the burdens of war by drafting the use of money according to ability to lend to the government."

How would that be done? Every person possessing property valued at more than $1,000 would be required to loan money to the government by purchasing government bonds paying one per cent interest. If your property amounted to $10,000, or less, your quota of bonds would be five per cent of the $9,000 excess. From that point on the scale rises in multiples of five until those of large property would be required to put seventy-five per cent of it into these government bonds.

In recognition of the likelihood that many persons would not have the money available, the bill provides that the money may be borrowed from the government—at six per cent, backed by a mortgage on your property. Yet the bonds you would be compelled to buy from the government would pay only one per cent.

A war measure, you say? No, indeed. It would be effective, not solely in time of war, but would become effective whenever Congress declared an emergency to exist "which in the judgment of the president is sufficient to necessitate an increase in the military establishment by the drafting of manpower."

In other words, right now. As one commentator has remarked, nothing even remotely approaching this measure as an agency of complete socialization of this country has ever been seriously proposed. That measure should be killed by the Congress and the sooner, the better.

The Real Remedy for the Dies Committee Findings

REPRESENTATIVE MARTIN DIES, Texas Democrat, declares in a book just published reviewing the work of his committee on un-American activities, that more than 2,000 "out-right Communists and party liners are still holding jobs in the government at Washington," that they have gained a "tremendous influence" there and that these left-wing followers of the president have constituted the "fountain head of subversive activities" in the country.

Thus again is impressed the duty of cleaning up this dangerous Red and Pink tincturing of our national government. Nothing has been done to that end, despite the constant disclosures of the Dies investigating committee. These have been so alarming that all those who believe there should be a change in the conditions revealed and that the Reds should be routed out, should be moved to apply the only remedy that now seems appropriate. This remedy lies in the ballot box at the November 5 election. There the people can register their protest and resentment against this Communist infiltration of their government by asking for a new management that will not for a moment tolerate such borings from within.

The Dies committee has done a splendid work during its existence. It has uncovered an enormous mass of subversive activities and has thus given Congress and the people something substantial to work on toward eradicating this cancerous growth.

In this connection, it is of concern to the people of the Western Maryland district that their representative in Congress, William D. Byron, voted against the bill appropriating funds for the continuance of this investigating committee.

A Co-ordinator That Is Badly Needed

WENDELL L. WILLKIE'S DEMAND for reorganization of the National Advisory Defense Commission focuses attention on a situation that should be of real public concern. Now that appropriations have been made, staffs assembled and contracts are in process of being let, commissioners approach their main job of arming the United States, which means prompt and effective production of ships, guns, planes, powder, ammunition and hundreds of lesser categories of war supplies.

The commission is still without a head. Appointment of a chairman, just for the sake of having a chairman with a neat graph of functions on paper, would of itself mean nothing. But whatever his title, whatever his relationship to President Roosevelt and his fellow commissioners, it is clear that a co-ordinator is essential if integrated mass production of defense needs is to be had.

Much has been said of the parallel between the nation's experience in 1917 and its present plight. The original Council of National Defense, set up prior to the country's entrance into the war, consisted of a number of cabinet members and various assorted committees of experts, executives and what-not. There was no central co-ordination, as there is none now, except in the sporadic intervention of President Wilson, acting under his war powers.

It was not until March 4, 1918, that co-ordination came into existence, when Bernard M. Baruch was made chairman of the War Industries Board. That board, as thus reorganized, provided effective co-ordination in the entire industrial field. The lesson, as concerns the present, seems to be an obvious one.

With all allowances for President Roosevelt's difficulties, and conceding his desire to arm in the shortest possible time, it is apparent that if effective aid is to be rendered to Britain, and effective armaments are to be provided at home, a re-organization of the National Advisory Defense Commission to provide effective co-ordination is essential.

If that demand of Mr. Willkie's be decried by the New Dealers as partisanship, the president has it within his power to make the most of it—through the simple process of acting on it.

Splendid Campaigning By Mr. Willkie

WENDELL L. WILLKIE'S CAMPAIGN seems to earn a place of distinction in the political history of the country by reason of the territory covered, the number and size of the audiences addressed, and the extraordinary personal appeal of the candidate.

This campaign, which now has only two weeks to run, has demonstrated as fallacious the theory that the radio has made obsolete the personal tours of the country that have been a part of the American political tradition since the early days of the nation's history.

While the radio concededly provides a satisfactory means of conveying a message to great numbers of people, it is deficient as a campaign instrument in the respect that it often conveys an inadequate conception of the candidate's personality.

Mr. Willkie has proved to be a remarkable campaigner, one whose methods are somewhat reminiscent of Theodore Roosevelt, one who has had the courage to go into hostile territory and to meet extreme hostility with calmness and dignity. Day by day his words seem to take on new and greater meaning as November 5 draws near.

Those who have accompanied Mr. Willkie say that his effectiveness increases constantly and that his appeal to the great crowds that hear him continues to grow. It seems certain that he will reach the peak of his power during these two vital weeks and will give to the final days of the campaign the impetus essential to victory.

A Reporter Goes To the Senate

THE UNITED STATES SENATE will have a member of exceptional origin and type when Joseph H. Ball takes the Minnesota seat made vacant by the death in a plane crash of the late Senator Lundeen.

Ball, a political reporter for the St. Paul Dispatch and Pioneer Press, receives the senatorship by appointment from Governor Harold Stassen. He is 34, a year older than Stassen. In his newspaper work, he reported the day-by-day news of Stassen's meteoric rise to the governorship and to prominence in Republican national politics.

Within newspaper offices such men are said to be "doing state politics." Some of them, acquiring a large acquaintance and much detailed knowledge of state affairs, become powers in their states. Their work often contributes to the rise or fall of governors and other officials, but it seldom leads to first class political preferment for themselves.

Ball is probably the first to go from this employment direct to the Senate. It is apparent that his has been an experience which should prove an excellent preparation for service in the Senate.

There has been a dearth of Hollywood night club battles lately. Maybe the actors have decided it's no use competing with Europe for front page publicity.

I Hit a Dog

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I came to a stop at a street intersection and then slowly turned the corner. . . . And as I drove along I felt something hit the car and at the same instant I saw a woman in the light of a street lamp lift her hands to her face in a gesture of horror. . . . I looked back and saw a little white bundle on the car track. . . . I had hit her dog.

By the time I parked my car and went back the owner of the dog was sitting in the doorway of an apartment house and holding the dog in her lap. . . . The pet was horribly hurt, making no sound but unable to stand and badly injured. She was a little white-haired terrier. Frightened by a much larger dog, she had darted into the street and under my wheels. . . . The man and woman did not blame me. We took her to a veterinarian and left her for the night. He wasn't too encouraging; he said she was probably suffering from a brain lesion and such injuries were always doubtful.

And as I write I do not know whether that little beloved animal is alive or dead. I am cowardly about it and dare not telephone to ask. . . . They told me they didn't blame me. They insisted kindly that it wasn't my fault at all. It was just one of those things. But I can't get that puppy out of my mind. I find myself trying to reconstruct the past, trying vainly to evade the fact of that instant.

If I had gone one block further before turning—if I had started from home one minute sooner or later—if I had been going faster or slower—if I had not gone on that errand at all—if they had kept a leash on their little friend—if that other bigger dog had not been there—if any one of a thousand possibilities had only existed—that little dog Ginger would be well and joyful this instant, would not have run beneath my car, her master and mistress would not have suffered, and I would not be sitting here, speculating so vainly, with such regret.

These thoughts, these "ifs," are futile, I know. And I should push them out of my mind. . . . But there's nothing I can do. The fact remains and will not vanish—I hit a little dog and the memory of that moment will never quite leave me. There will always be that little hurt somewhere in the back of my memory.

New Shock-Punch Should Backfire, Gen. Johnson Says

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 22.—Every great wind from Washington blows a rumor that the magicians of the great white wigwag are cooking up some heap big medicine to win by a shock-punch just before election.

It is so hard to get this dope that I can't vouch for it. I guess run all the way from a suspension of diplomatic relationship with Germany, through the contribution of our army's bomb-sight and flying fortresses to Britain, to an acceptance by us of the joint use of the Hong Kong and Singapore bases. The guesses differ but they all point the same way—toward our getting spectacularly closer to actual participation in foreign war.

If this country hasn't lost its reason, I can't see how that would help get Mr. Roosevelt elected. It ought to defeat him. The country overwhelmingly doesn't want war. Any such policy, apart from its danger of oceanic blood-letting, would wreck our free economic system and surely subject our free democratic political system to a dictatorship. "Keep out of war by getting into war. Defend our democracy by giving up our democracy." It all seems crazy, but this is a mad world.

Tragic Blunder Seen

I believe it would be a tragic blunder for the country and also for the third term candidate in the election, but the Fourth New Deal medicine men have other ideas. They are licking their chops with sly but evident satisfaction of a cat that has just surreptitiously swallowed a canary. Perhaps they think it bolsters the argument: "Why change horses while crossing a stream?" The answer to that one is: "To get a better horse and keep from drowning," but they don't seem to care.

I wish I could call the turn more closely. I conjectured the timing of some similar move to "blanket" Willkie's acceptance speech—and got pretty well panned because the destroyer deal was not announced that day. Nevertheless, it was announced and the acceptance speech pretty well blanketed itself. It was given before Mr. Willkie really began to go to town.

Much Smoke Means Fire

I can't call the exact turn here either, but I feel sure it is coming. Where there is so much smoke there is sure to be fire. Every political rustle out of Washington smokes with this one. Moreover, it is such invariable and typical Roosevelt strategy to put on a display of fireworks at every crisis to blind the public to all other issues that, in his greatest crisis, I feel that some such cooked-up, synthetic aurora borealis is as certain as sunrise.

There is no such trend or condition in the war situation as would warrant any radical change in our policy, even if anything could ever justify this radical change. But Roosevelt is an adept in such matters. If there is no emergency, he can invent one. He needs something spectacular badly now because Mr. Willkie is walking away with millions of votes carved out of his 1936 majority. Whatever it is, it had better be good.

A Boomerang

The danger to the third term candidate is that any such thing is apt to prove a surer boomerang than any of the playthings of Henry Wallace. It ought to prove a boomerang. Such an act would be playing politics with the peace of America. National resentment should be universal and devastating. It would be prostituting national defense for the perpetuation of an administration which has been a disastrous failure.

It would not just be risking the lives and limbs of millions of Americans—to no necessary purpose. If we actually get into this war

DARE STONES STUDIED

Today, with twenty-eight cents being spent for taxes, sixty-five cents for basic needs, only seven cents is left to spread over the vast range of savings, insurance, luxuries and the other items which have become virtually essentials in many homes.

This, of course, is of vital importance to each of the 60,000,000 church affiliates in America, many of whom accept with complacency the idea of a Third Term, the doctrine of the indispensable man and the entire, underlying threat to our liberties, both as church members and as citizens, which is only vaguely concealed in this time of crisis.

Dr. S. E. Morrison (left), head of the Harvard department of history, and H. J. Pearce, Jr., examine one of the Dare stones found near Atlanta, Ga. The stones may contain solution to the mystery of the famed "lost colony" of early American days, one of whose inhabitants was Virginia Dare, first white child born in America. Pearce and his father discovered the stones.

SOME FOLKS DON'T SCARE EASILY

Question of Fiscal Practice Is Seen As Requiring Answer from Roosevelt

By MARK SULLIVAN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Mr. Roosevelt, beginning Wednesday, will deliver five political speeches, to answer what Mr. Roosevelt calls "misrepresentations" by his political opponents.

Of all the statements by Republican candidate Willkie that have been denounced by the New Dealers as "misrepresentations," there is one outstanding. It is this "misrepresentation" that has already excited the most violent denunciation by New Deal spokesmen. If Mr. Roosevelt ignores this particular "misrepresentation," the more force of his ignoring it will have deep significance—about the future.

Mr. Roosevelt should be reelected. The "misrepresentation" in question has to do with government fiscal practices, continued borrowing, mounting debt. The charge made by Mr. Willkie is that this government practice must cause great future detriment to holders of life insurance policies, persons relying upon government social security protection, and other classes similarly situated.

Angry Retort

To this charge made by Mr. Willkie, New Dealer Mayor LaGuardia, of New York, angrily retorts, "reckless, irresponsible, false." From Mr. Roosevelt we should expect an answer more cogent, and exactly stated. Unfortunately Mr. Willkie's charge on some occasions, has been stated in a way which is not exact—for example: "I say to you who are paying for social security, and I say to you quite deliberately, that if you reelect the present administration you will never collect a dime of it." That administration is as surely headed down the road of inflation and bankruptcy as we are standing here this morning.

A Five-Word Change

But, to get the real meaning of Mr. Willkie's charge, change those five words of it, without changing the meaning. Change "never collect a dime of it" to "never get the benefit of it." In that form, Mr. Willkie could quite well support his charge.

The difference between the two forms can be illustrated by a typical case: A worker is paying social security taxes to the government. In return, the government promises that a given time, say fifteen years from now, it will pay the worker a given sum—say $60 a month.

It is extremely probable the government will keep that promise in form. That is, the government will give the worker sixty pieces of paper, each with the word "dollar" printed on it. There is little reason why the government should fail to do that. So far as Mr. Willkie implied the government might fail to do that, his statement is not completely convincing. It is always easy for the government to print

May Have Smaller Value

But—and this is what Mr. Willkie's statement means—those dollars may have much smaller value, smaller purchasing power. When, fifteen years from now, the social security beneficiary goes out to market with his $60, he may find it takes one of the dollars to buy a peck of potatoes, another to buy a haircut. He may find that his money from the government, when he gets it, fifteen years from now, will not buy him as much as he now thinks it will. In other words, the worker who now pays dollars into the social security fund, may find, fifteen years from now, when he gets them back, that his dollars have shrunk in value to quarters, or even dimes.

If Mr. Willkie's statement were put in a form containing all the elements of the situation, it would run somewhat thus: "If Mr. Roosevelt is reelected, and continues his present course; if he continues to spend much more than the government takes in, continues to increase the government debt—then by the end of his third term, the debt will have become a runaway debt. When that happens, inflation and bankruptcy will follow. Dollars will have become quarters or dimes."

Distinguished Authority

In support of that charge, Mr. Willkie can cite a distinguished authority. He can cite Mr. Roosevelt—as of eight years ago.

What Mr. Willkie says in 1940 is in effect what Mr. Roosevelt said on October 19, 1932: "If, like a spendthrift, (the government) continues to pile up deficits, then it is on the road to bankruptcy."

What Mr. Willkie says in 1940 is in effect what Mr. Roosevelt said March 10, 1933: "For three long years, the federal government has been on the road to bankruptcy. . . . Too often in recent history, liberal governments have been wrecked on rocks of loose fiscal policy. We must avoid this danger."

Nobody Is Indispensable

From the Connellsville, Pa., Courier.

Mr. Average Citizen would not think of subscribing to the theory that one man, or woman, in a business organization, a church, a club or a lodge is the only one qualified to serve as its president or directing head. It is just as illogical to think of the incumbent president of the United States as being the only one in the Democratic party, or in any party, with ability to safely pilot the ship of state in the current or any emergency.

There are in any organization others than the one in the chief office fully as capable of managing its affairs for the welfare of all concerned. There is no such thing as an indispensable man or woman when it comes to thinking in terms of filling a vacancy should one occur. There always have been, there always will be men and women qualified to step into whatever office, high or low, that may be vacated. Affairs, whether local, state or national, would go on as usual. Perhaps the infusion of new blood may be beneficial.

The individual who comes to look upon himself, or herself, as the "only" one has allowed ego to become master. Personal interests have become uppermost.

Yukon Is Praised As a Paradise By Peoria Man

By EDWIN C. HILL

A letter to hand from Bill Albee. Read it and weep.

"We were awakened from our eiderdown this morning by the hollering of thousands of blue cranes heading south in great V formation." Bill writes. "They've been winging overhead steadily for the past several days."

Last night the Northern Lights were extra brilliant, probably a warning of cold weather soon to follow. And that reminds us that we will be flying south, too, in a few days."

The letter is dated Frances Lake, Yukon Territory, Sept. 22, 1940, and is written neatly in pencil on quite neat notepaper. Bill always having been a neat fellow and having shared with his wife, Ruth, a habit of getting into situations where life depended on neatness. It was carried "out" by an Indian runner and flown the rest of the way.

Ticklish Time Seen

"... we're going to have a ticklish time giving the right answer when we come outside," the letter continues. "It doesn't seem possible that there are places where people are destroying each other indiscriminately. All summer we have been in a paradise—There's one white man at Frances Lake, a grand young Hudson's bay factor. The closest white to the south is thirty days away by trail—to the northwest, twenty days—to the northeast, an unknown country practically all the way to the Mackenzie. . . . So you see, there's room to breathe here."

William Albee is a Peoria boy, about 33 now, and the "we" he refers to in his letter is a parcel of quite some folks—his wife, Ruth, born and brought up on a farm outside Peoria, his eight year old boy Shooker (William Jr. born in Fairbanks, Alaska, the day the ice went out, his five-year-old baby girl Kinkemut (Evelyn) born in Wales, the westernmost town in Russia, only fifty-six miles from Russia. When Evelyn was born Bill had to be Ruth's midwife. And after he had finished this terrifying and beautiful experience, he went to the door of the hut in which they were living and looked out over the Bering Straits. The international date line crossed in the middle and he could look beyond it and see tomorrow—something every young father is most anxious to see the day his child is born.

Little Walk Is Long

This summer Bill and his extraordinary family decided on a little walk. They walked 1,000 miles to Frances Lake, the kids walking, and carrying packs, too. Shooker carried a 10-pound pack and little Kinkemut carried a five-pound pack. They were both, Bill told us in an earlier letter, "marvelous, showed no signs of tenderfoot material in them." Going for long walks is nothing new for Bill and Ruth, as you would know if you read their fine book, "Alaska Chiselings," published last spring by Dodd, Mead.

Bill was a midwestern real estate man's son, and by the time he was 23 was awfully tired of traveling. He married a farm girl to stay in one place the rest of his life and she married him to travel. The result was the usual compromise. They traveled.

Remained on Continent

They started out for a walk around the world and never got off the continent, never wanted to get off it once they saw the Yukon and Alaska and went where no other whites ever had been before. At the beginning they were completely ignorant of how to live in the wilderness and nearly died. Their dog, Wessel, did die—of starvation. But where the domesticated animal failed to survive the backward slide to primitive life, the human animal with his greater intelligence not only survived it, but thrived on it. Bill says he can live as well in the wilderness as we can with money and stores at our fingertips.

"Meat and fish," he told us, when starting out on this vacation trip with his children, "grow all around. You have your choice of vegetables. The roots of certain trees in the north country taste like sweet potatoes. Lily pad roots make good eating. Lamb's Quarters grow wild and taste like spinach, only better. Wild onions and mushrooms grow wild. You can brew a fine tea from spruce tips or from an azalea-like plant called Hudson's Bay Tea. There are all kinds of berries for dessert and the inner bark of the Jack Pine provides a swell chewing gum with a laxative effect."

Sugar and Salt

Sugar? "Fats and berries." Salt? "Wild game is plenty salty. Salt out of a cellar tastes so harsh to us now it burns our tongues."

We asked Bill what was the only thing civilization had provided that man cannot get along without. He said:

"Mosquito netting. You can keep off the mosquitoes by day with your hands, but you've got to rest at night or you'll wear out and die very soon—in a few days." Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Civic Group Board Discusses Traffic And Other Matters

Junior Association of Commerce Directors Consider Many Subjects

Traffic problems in the city, conscription and employment, the "Four Year Plan," the Community Forum, a Halloween dance and parade and membership were among the questions discussed Monday by the Board of Directors of the Junior Association of Commerce.

It was decided by the group to hold the October dinner meeting Monday evening at a place to be announced. A speaker will be invited to discuss Cumberland's traffic control situation, and report on a survey recently completed by a citizen's committee. The meeting will probably be held in the Golden Gate Tea room, unless otherwise designated.

Invite Guard Officers

An invitation was extended to officers and non-commissioned officers of the Maryland National Guard here, to attend the Forum lecture November 14, when Major George Fielding Eliot, military strategist and authority will speak on phases of national defense, and the present world military crisis. Cap. Randolph Millholland, member of the board, accepted the invitation on behalf of the guard officers and men. It was also decided to send a similar invitation to members of the local American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars posts.

Thomas B. Finnan, Jr., reporting on the Community Forum said several people assisting in the ticket sale have not made their returns, and a complete report cannot be made. Preliminary figures indicate the Forum has enough subscriptions to complete the season as scheduled. He asked that all members and others who have tickets make reports as quickly as possible so the work of the promotion committee might be completed.

To Co-operate with V. F. W.

The Junior Association is cooperating with Henry Hart Post, No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars in promoting a mammoth Halloween celebration and parade here. J. Corfield Patterson, committee chairman reported to the board that over $500 is being contributed by local merchants and the veterans to attract bands and drum corps here for the event. The Junior Association is to provide 25 men to help with the parade and festivity. Thomas F. Conlon, will be parade marshal. The parade will start at Fifth street in South Cumberland, proceed up Virginia and Maryland avenues to Baltimore street to Centre street. It will turn at Valley street and move south on Mechanic street to Baltimore and will disband at Williams street. Prizes will be offered for costumes as well as music units and organizations.

As an additional Halloween festivity, the Association has mailed invitations for a dance at Cumberland Country Club, November 1. Marty Flynn and his Society Ramblers will play. All persons who attend must wear fancy dress or costume and prizes will be awarded for the best and most appropriate attire.

James Alfred Avirett reported on the progress of the "Four Year Plan," an organization project to foster a four year term for the mayor and city council of Cumberland, eliminate an election every two years and use funds saved to increase the salaries of elected city officials. Avirett is preparing a proposed bill to be presented to the county delegation to the legislature.

John Golden Resigns
The resignation of John Golden who recently enlisted in the United States Army was accepted, and plans were started to hold an election among the membership to fill the vacancy to the Board. It was agreed that in view of conscription, vacancies occurring on the board should be filled as rapidly as possible, after received.

A committee consisting of P. Allan Weatherholt, chairman, Thomas B. Finnan, Jr., and Randolph Millholland was named to study reports of discrimination by employers, of men of draft age, who seek employment. The committee will report to the board.

mittie was asked to present a resolution to the membership at the next regular meeting. It was indicated at the meeting that men between the ages of 21 and 36 are not being given an equal chance when seeking employment, with persons beyond this age bracket. Many employers, it was indicated, refuse to accept applications from men of conscription age. The membership of the board heartily endorsed the proposal to form a committee to draw the necessary resolution calling public attention to this reported discrimination.

Local Women Will Attend Missionary Conference

Twelve officers and delegates of the Mountain Conference will attend the fifty-eighth annual convention of the Women's Missionary society of the Maryland Synod, United Lutheran church in America, today and Thursday in the Salem Lutheran church, Catonsville, Md.

Why Good Grooming requires keeping DARK ARCS DRY

If you still are tolerating perspiration under the arms, just listen to facts about hygiene in these dark arcs that any doctor can give you:

It's uncleanly! That repellent under-arm odor signals decay! That perspiration which damages gowns is decomposed!

Because the dark arcs are closed to purifying air and light, perspiration decays before it evaporates.

Perspiration, carrying cast off body wastes, pours out on the skin, mingling with dead skin scales, and micro-organisms. Decay begins. Acids form. Fungus may grow and bacteria multiply. Rancid odors appear.

"It's shocking," say lovely women of today!

They prevent it, by using Arrid to safely check perspiration. Arrid keeps underarms dry, odorless, 1 to 3 days. No perspiration, no decay, no odor.

Arrid, which safely checks perspiration, is a pure, white, greasy cream. Harmless to skin and fabrics. Use it any time, after shaving, as you dress . . . 10¢, 39¢, 59¢—at stores which sell toilet goods.

More than 25 MILLION jars of Arrid have been sold.

CARLESSNESS COSTLY

UN SOUND reasoning costs plenty of tricks, but nothing like so many as carelessness. Practically all players guard themselves against dangers which seem probable, but the better ones also are willing to go out of their way to protect themselves against the most remote risks. As a consequence, they make a larger proportion of their contracts, and are just as well off relatively as if they held better cards.

South's analysis, after West led the club Q, showed that he had one loser in each minor suit and a possible loser in hearts if the finesse failed. Even then, he could discard one of his minor suit losers on the dummy's third heart, leaving only one minor loser and one in hearts. He could therefore afford a single loser in trumps, but not two.

After this study, the declarer took the opening trick in the dummy and promptly led a small spade. East played low, South put on the Q and the K won. After that there was no earning way to prevent East from winning a second trump trick with his J. The entire contract then depended upon whether the heart finesse was favorable. It was not, and so the loss of a trick there, plus one in the minors, beat South.

With this kind of situation, especially when holding the 10 in addition to the A and Q, the declarer's job is to use his A on the first round of the suit. If it drops either the K or J, there is no remaining chance to lose more than one trick in the suit. If both players put on small cards, the declarer then can lead a small one from the dummy. If East follows suit at all, the contract is safe, regardless of whether his card is the J or the K. As it happens in this case, correct play would have kept the defenders from any trump tricks, and would have produced an overtrick.

SYNOPSIS

READ THIS FIRST:
HAVING RESCUED an intoxicated, handsome stranger who was about to be thrown out of the night club where she is a singer and dancer, KIT REILLY takes him to her room. She spends the night with her friend and partner in her song and dance act, FRANK LE MAZE, a good-natured, veteran vaudeville performer. Kit became interested when the stranger drunkenly claimed to be VANCE HEALEY, a famous radio sports announcer and news commentator, who had been Kit's classmate in college. She does not, however, believe the intoxicated stranger is Healey.

CHAPTER FIVE

KIT FIXED an unbending eye on her guest and demanded: "How much of last night do you remember?"

His eyes were utterly blank. Then quickly an odd expression of abashment came into them. Kit saw that, too, and steeled herself against it.

"We'll start at the beginning, when you started to heckle the show at Luigi's."

"Luigi's? I never heard of the place!"

"I'm telling you about it right now, Luigi's is a sort of night club in the Village, at which you got obnoxious."

"Talkative, maybe, but obnoxious, never!" he corrected gently. "Obnoxious," she repeated firmly. "And they were going to throw you out. He opened his mouth to protest, but Kit ignored him."

"This will explain why you're here. At Luigi's, they don't stop with throwing you out. They dump you a block away in some doorway for the cops to pick up."

"I see," he said thoughtfully, feeling his enlarged chin tenderly. "A nice joint! Must have been where I got this. Why didn't the cops pick me up?"

"Because I brought you here."

He eyed her contemplatively.

Kit read more in his eyes than he thought she could. The reading angered her because it embarrassed her. "I had no personal reasons," she said sharply. "You're here not because of who you are, but because you said you were Vance Healey. At least, from the way you said it, anybody might have thought that was what you meant."

"Maybe I am," he said, as though he wouldn't be a bit surprised to hear he was Napoleon.

"Maybe you are and maybe I'm the Queen of May. Listen, stranger. You can't go around doing things like that. You might get into trouble."

He gave her a very fine smile, all things considered. "And not have you around to rescue me?"

Her glance would have withered him had he been capable of seeing it through the mist.

"I didn't do it for you," she said clearly. "I did it because you might have got somebody else in trouble."

He wanted to ask her how, but the question slipped away from his mind as another thought occurred to him. The kid was shivering in the unheated room. He got to his feet with considerable effort and crossed the room to close the window. He put his coat about her shivering shoulders.

Kit accepted the warmth gratefully, but she set her mouth in a sterner, resisting line. How could she be so glib? Most drunks, she told herself, had some charm, but it wasn't worth a hill of beans.

"Don't waste your time doing a Sir Galahad with me," she said with an ungraciousness that was unfamiliar to her. "Just listen hard."

He appeared to be listening hard. "Put yourself in the place of an important person, a person whose name was a national by-word . . . like Vance Healey, the famous announcer."

He opened his eyes—wide.

Kit saw it and was pleased with the effect of her words. She nodded impressively and continued: "That's who you said you were! Well now, suppose some drunk—"

"That's who you said you were! Well now, suppose some drunk—"

"I did it because you might have got somebody else in trouble."

"Like me?" she agreed. "Suppose some . . . some person like you was picked up in the kind of condition that you were in last night and he said he was you—or rather Vance Healey—and the newspapers got the story? You do look enough like him—only vaguely, of course—for people who didn't know him to believe your story?"

His eyes regarded her somberly. "I think you've got something there," he said. "Go on."

"Well, the newspapers print it and right then the harm would be done. Wouldn't it look sweet on the front pages? Vance Healey, famous radio announcer, arrested for drunkenness?"

Her eyes held his even while he lighted another cigarette.

"Naturally, when the papers have discovered they've printed a scandalous libel about a man, they retract it. But, I ask you, where do the retractions appear?"

"In court?" He asked, co-operatively.

"No. In a little paragraph somewhere where nobody ever sees it. And most of the people never do learn that he wasn't to blame. Oh, you know what I mean!"

He nodded wisely. "Sure, sure I do. But there are a couple of things that elude me. He drained his cup and looked up politely. "How about an eye-opener for you?"

"No thank you. What eludes you?"

"Things you're saying about Healey. What I don't get is the angle about him. Why not Healey?"

"Vance Healey in a place like Luigi's?"

"Why not? Isn't he supposed to be a democratic feller? A friend of the people? A regular guy? Or is he something special?"

"Maybe he is something special . . . and then again maybe it all depends on what you call a regular guy."

Kit went to a drawer in the dresser and fumbled amid the contents. Then she brought out a manila envelope and drew from it a faded newspaper clipping. She brought it back to him and held it before his eyes, as if not trusting it to his trembling hands.

The mist cleared after a moment of blinking and he looked down into the picture. The laughing face of a clean-cut boy looked back at him. The face framed in a football helmet. Above the picture was a date line, October 26, 1929.

DETROIT, Oct. 22 (AP)—Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York, paying a whirlwind visit to Detroit in behalf of President Roosevelt's re-election, climaxed a busy afternoon by scuffling with a heckler on the city hall steps today.

As the stocky La Guardia was walking down the city hall steps after a call upon Mayor Edward J. Jeffries, a man stepped out from the crowd and cried:

"Did Boss Flynn send you here?" Presumably he referred to Edward J. Flynn, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Witnesses said that Mayor La Guardia strode up to the man, seized him by the shoulders and began to shake him, meanwhile shouting: "You take that back. Are you going to take that back?"

Police thereupon stepped between the men and took the heckler to headquarters. No charges were filed against him, and he was released after questioning.

New York Mayor Angry when Asked If He Is Aid of "Boss" Flynn

DETROIT, Oct. 22 (AP)—Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York, paying a whirlwind visit to Detroit in behalf of President Roosevelt's re-election, climaxed a busy afternoon by scuffling with a heckler on the city hall steps today.

As the stocky La Guardia was walking down the city hall steps after a call upon Mayor Edward J. Jeffries, a man stepped out from the crowd and cried:

"Did Boss Flynn send you here?" Presumably he referred to Edward J. Flynn, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Witnesses said that Mayor La Guardia strode up to the man, seized him by the shoulders and began to shake him, meanwhile shouting: "You take that back. Are you going to take that back?"

Police thereupon stepped between the men and took the heckler to headquarters. No charges were filed against him, and he was released after questioning.

Writer Opposes Time-Teaching Of Arithmetic

Condemns Use of Verbal Problems; Says Book Should Be Used

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

I must have been about twelve years old when in the Old Forge School (country school) in Little Cove, Warren Township, Franklin Co., Pa., we had verbal (reading) problems in arithmetic. The teacher dictated them from a book and we were supposed to solve them on the board. Three of us in the class—Almeta Sosey, Charley Atkinson and I, Charley and I waited until "Meta" began so we might know whether to add, subtract, multiply or divide. "Me a" seemed always to know. She was a whizz at arithmetic and spelling. She was a few years older than Charley and I and I always thought her very pretty. Some years earlier I used to have to go sit beside her for punishment. But as I grew older this was no longer punishment! Today she is married and has a lovely family of her own now and some gray hairs and that's more than I have of any shade.

It was years before I gained any confidence at solving verbal problems. I made progress when we used the book and had the problems right before our eyes, with lots of time to read and study it carefully. But when we used to try to carry the whole thing in our little heads I felt confused.

Down with Dictation

Fewer teachers now than then dictate verbal problems in arithmetic, but too many still do. Down with all dictation! What is worse than dictation of verbal arithmetic problems in having youngsters work such problems from a printed or mimeographed page against the watch. Pressed for time, the hurried child short-cuts, takes a chance and gambles the whole problem carefully and taking enough time to ascertain what it meant he will look hurriedly from one number to another and guess whether it is an add, subtract, or multiplying problem. Often in this column I have condemned stop-watch drills in adding, subtracting and all the like of "bare" numbers. Still more to be condemned is doing of verbal problems against the watch.

Parents May Help

Your child might be highly accurate in adding, subtracting, multiplying or dividing. Even then, he may, in attacking a verbal problem, have trouble knowing which process to employ.

Have you watched a child play with numbers before going to school? Have you ever seen him adding when he should subtract or vice-versa? Or dividing when he should multiply? You have not. He doesn't have such confusions until after he enters school. At leisure in play he senses the real situation. Under pressure at school, he does not often have a read situation, now does he have time and motive to use his imagination.

Now you can help him with verbal problems by inducing him to take plenty of time, by creating a calm and serene atmosphere for him, by leading him to read the problem slowly and carefully. You also can make up interesting verbal problems for him from vivid experiences of his and from facts in the newspaper.

If you would like to secure some self-teaching materials in arithmetic designed to help your child learn the basic number facts accurately and succeed at verbal problems, write me at 234 East Forty-Fifth Street, N. Y. City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it and let me tell you how and where such may be obtained. Also you may have a

Pierre Laval Is Slated To Become Next French Head

Implication Is Seen in Fact He Met Hitler and Not Petain

BERN, Switzerland, Oct. 22 (AP)—Pierre Laval, the swarthy little advocate of appeasement, is likely to take over the French government powers in name as well as in fact in arranging a final French-German war settlement, observers here believed tonight.

They read this implication into the fact that it was Laval and not the octogenarian French Chief of State Philippe Petain who met today with Germany's Fuehrer Adolf Hitler.

Laval and his clique thus far have been content to execute their authority under Petain's signature, Laval having the title of vice-premier and officially designated successor to Petain.

The Laval-Hitler conference was reported here to have been accepted at Vichy as meaning that a final settlement between France and Germany is close, but not at the price of active French participation in the war against Britain.

Many French observers, however, believe that Laval and Admiral Jean Darlan, secretary of state for the French navy, advocate accepting the German terms and making war against Britain, erstwhile ally of France.

Marshal Petain and the former allied Generalissimo Maxime Weygand are declared to have approved defensive action against the British in such cases as the Oran naval affair and the Dakar expedition but to be opposed to an offensive war on their former ally.

Thus, it was suggested, French union with the Rome-Berlin Axis doubtless would require that Petain and Weygand step down.

Weygand now is in charge of military and political matters in French Africa for the Vichy government.

Petain himself has designated Laval as his "crown prince" and has relied on him heavily in the trying months since the Armistice of last June.

German sources said they doubted that Fuehrer Hitler and his Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop would have received Laval unless some form of German collaboration with the Vichy regime already had been arranged during Laval's recent talks with Otto Abetz, German "ambassador" to France.

It was believed the French might be permitted to take their government back to Paris and Versailles and resume at least a partial administration of civil affairs in the German-occupied zone, and perhaps get a definite armistice settlement.

Just what the Vichy government would pay for such concessions is not clear.

Hitler Seeking

Listening post of Bern said that Hitler's audience with Laval was accepted in Vichy as meaning a final settlement with Germany may be imminent, but not at the price of an active French participation in the war against Britain.

Before the disclosure of Hitler's mysterious talk with Laval had been made officially, there had been rumors of negotiations with the French government of Marshal Petain to bring France into the war on the side of the Axis.

They had been supported by the absence from Berlin of Von Ribbentrop himself and by yesterday's radio appeal of British Prime Minister Churchill that the French people do nothing to hinder Britain's prosecution of the war even though they could do nothing to help.

Churchill's speech was unsurprisingly denounced today by the German propagandist "Lord Haw Haw" in a broadcast picked up in the United States by CBS.

"Haw Haw called it a miserable little effort," said Churchill's was "a mean little character," declared it was "fresh proof of abject weakness on the part of Britain."

Swiss reports said, however, that despite the opposition of French Chief of State Petain—the Axis powers are trying to persuade France to declare war on the British and are offering "easy" peace terms as bait.

In Vichy today, French Foreign Minister Paul Baudouin said he hoped for "frank and total" collaboration between France and Germany after a "just" peace is signed.

World's Fair Reports Profit of $5,020,000

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (AP)—Harvey D. Gibson, board chairman of the New York World's Fair of 1940, reported today a total operating profit of $5,020,000 for the fair since it first opened.

Gibson said that bondholders eventually would receive re-payment of nearly forty per cent of their $26,862,800 investment.

The fair, which closes this Sunday, had a gross revenue this season of $10,450,000, Gibson added, not counting receipts from advance ticket sales.

Rabbi to Speak

Court to Announce

was working May 22, the day the state charges the illegal operation was performed.

McGeedy said the cot referred to was in what was known as the finishing room and that no woman was in that room on May 22, that women never go back there.

"No, they couldn't," the witness said when pressed by the state, "because I would have seen them if they had been there."

McGeedy's testimony bore out that of Riley earlier in the afternoon. When queried by Ryan as to whether Mrs. Sapp met him at his place of business as charged, Riley registered surprise, said, "why, no sir, how could I do anything with a place of business open?"

On cross examination, Harris, with a touch of irony in his voice, inquired of Riley, "How did you acquire the appellation 'Doc'?"

Riley said he acquired it seventeen years ago in Baltimore when he worked under a Dr. Adelhart and a Dr. Bond, both dead.

In explaining the presence of what the state termed the "miniature drugstore" in Riley's cleaning establishment, the witness said that some of the potions were "beauty aids—creams and so forth."

First witness put on the stand yesterday morning by the state was Dr. Richard Williams who treated Mrs. Sapp when she became ill the night of May 22 and who had her removed to the hospital the next morning.

Physician On Stand

Dr. Williams identified various instruments and drugs removed from the little black bag taken from Riley's car and supplies confiscated in his cleaning establishment.

The instruments included knives, scissors, clamps, hypodermic needles, instruments used to remove tonsils, and a flashlight, termed "very handy" by the physician. There were a number of drugs. Some of the bottles were labeled and according to the witness "might contain most anything." There was a rubber glove for a left hand.

Both Dr. Williams and Dr. Knight Reynolds, the latter who was called in as a consultant in the case, testified that Mrs. Sapp had undergone an illegal operation.

A summary of events shows that the state presented only one witness, namely Mrs. Sapp, who named and pointed out Riley as the man who performed an illegal operation upon her.

On the other hand the defense had Riley, who denied the charge and McGeedy, who swore that no woman was in the cleaning establishment on May 22 for any such purpose as outlined by the state.

The state presented surgical instruments and medical supplies confiscated from the car and establishment of Riley which physicians admitted might have been used for performing an illegal operation. The defense said the instruments and supplies were "relics" and medicines for common ailments, and beauty creams.

The state presented two witnesses, both physicians, who testified that an illegal operation was performed on Mrs. Sapp prior to the time she came to their attention.

The case was submitted to the court late yesterday afternoon. The court announced it would withhold its verdict until this morning.

ings of the National Labor Relations act were described.

As for that act, Allan advised all employers to comply with the law as it now stands. It is most important, he said, that everybody remain informed and alert regarding those factories which may adversely affect business. Nevertheless, he said, "make your influence felt in all matters which ultimately affect you. By so doing you are performing a genuine public service and fulfilling your obligation as partner in the triumvirate of labor, management and the public."

In concluding, Allan urged his listeners to encourage the high ethical standards in all business relations and to exemplify the vocational objectives of Rotary.

Such a Step

Baudouin commented: "I can't judge Germany by its intentions."

Other French official quarters meanwhile said the government is not particularly concerned with Prime Minister Churchill's appeal yesterday to Frenchmen to refrain from hindering Britain's war effort, because he made no direct reference to the Vichy regime. The Churchill speech was not relayed for publication in France.

Discussing France's colonies, Baudouin said the status quo would be maintained in French mandated Syria, "where there are troops to preserve it" and that in Indo-China efforts would be made to ward off an economic accord with Japan, which has won military concessions in that Asiatic outpost.

flow of material that will cease only when we give the word for it to cease."

Although he acknowledged that "we are not in shape today to defend ourselves on land," he said that "by next September xxx we shall be ready to maintain in the field a basic force equipped with the finest armament the world can produce, a force trained to the limit."

"National defense is the paramount issue in American life today," he continued. "Everything else must be subordinate to it. I am not rattling the sabre. It is not a question of going to war—we are trying to do in two years what Germany did in seven."

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt termed national unity "a backlog of preparedness," and expressed the hope that some day there would be "universal service" for not only armed forces but for those who remain at home, who, she said, were "all important" in an adequate defense system.

"There must be no greed entering our lives," she declared, "without national unity, national defense is impossible."

Declaring "I believe in universal military service as a national policy," Col. William J. Donovan, World War head of the "fighting sixty-ninth" regiment, added that he was "not urging that we now adopt it, and yet, this is something that we must think of for the future."

Says President

"We can not lose, we must win, we will win."

The Republican presidential nominee, who was greeted with hand-clapping, whistling and cheers by an audience which filled the stadium to 25,000 seats, said that "one blessing we all profoundly desire is 'to remain at peace.'"

The Republican presidential nominee noted that "it was in this very year that the third term political machine staged some of its most brilliant efforts."

"It was here on this very platform that Senator Lister Hill of Alabama placed the name of the third term candidate in nomination."

"It was here that the voice of the commissioner of sewers boomed out its cry for a third term."

"It was here that the name of Thomas Jefferson was booed, and the protesting voices of men who had long been honored in the Democratic party were drowned out by the organized henchmen of the Kelly-Nash machine."

"Nearby, in the twenty-seventh ward headquarters, those self-styled liberals, Harry Hopkins and Harold Ickes, conferred with Bosses Kelly, Hague and Flynn—behind bullet-proof windows."

"Turning again to the international situation, a Soule said he wished to make 'a solemn promise' that 'the responsibility of government known as foreign affairs will be protected by me from partisan politics.'

"To fill the post of secretary of state," he said, "I shall choose the ablest man in the United States on foreign affairs. I shall choose him for his knowledge, his ability, and his integrity—and not for any other considerations whatever xxx."

"We shall send out to represent us in the capitals of the world ambassadors chosen for their diplomatic qualifications. It's safer to keep the playboys right here in America."

"I pledge you that our party will not pay off its financial obligations with the safety of the American people by appointing springtime ambassadors. I have never owed any man that much, and I never shall."

Willkie said that he still believed in the Democratic platform of 1932 and contended that the secret of democracy is

THE DAILY STORY

MASTERPIECE

It May Have Been Great Literature, but to the Old Lady It Was Worthless because It Broke Too Many Hearts

By JAMES RYAN

"To my mother, without whose assistance in presenting me to this earth these tales of my later life might never have been written," Dudley Carver looked a long moment at him and said, "That's being pretty ironic, isn't it? I can't imagine why you want such a dedication to your book."

"From me?" Dudley Carver demanded petulantly, his hands restlessly shuffling the thick sheaf of pages of the manuscript. "All life appears to me to be ironic."

"You've got to pull yourself together, old man!" the noted columnist pointed out with concern. "You're off on the track of something strange and perverse—and heaven help me, it was I who suggested it!"

Carver smiled evenly at him. "That's it—it is entirely you who made this masterpiece of mine what

"All life appears to be ironic."

It is—a contemporary scourge against the well-known setting. Without your advice, I'd still be just a run-of-the-mill playwright, churning out so much copy each year for a stated amount of recompense!"

Ziegler was startled. "Now, see here, old man," he pleaded. "I once told you that your life as a reporter and chronicler of the bright life might ultimately lead you to success—but I didn't think you'd expose living celebrities in your memoirs!"

Carver turned on him with a fanatical light in his eyes. "You do the same thing every day, you hypocrite—only you don't dare to name names or cite actual instances! I've been mediocre at writing plays. Successful plays, mind you, but things of such a nature as to vanish overnight. This biography, or autobiography, is salty, lasting, endurable. It will be my masterpiece, to be read long after I'm gone!"

Arnold Ziegler shrugged his beefy shoulders in dismay and disagreement. He resented inwardly having been the cause of his bosom friend's primary essay into dangerous journalism. But the phase, he hoped, would not last.

"Vanderfeld has approved my opus, Arnold!" was Carver's news several days later. "He thinks it's one of the most sensational exposts of modern artists in existence. And he agrees with me that it will be my masterpiece, not like those light plays I've been wasting good talent on!"

Ziegler looked askance at his excited friend. "If you take my advice, Dudley, you'd go to a good hospital and take a long, long rest before you do any more about this business."

"A hospital—with me on the crest of the world?" his friend demanded incredulously. "I'm due for a large and unprecedented celebration, Arnold!"

Ziegler read of the celebration in the paper for which he wrote a daily stint. It went into long detail about the details of the tragic end of one of the country's most promising authors.

"I hate to disturb you at a time like this, Mrs. Carver, but I just can't help feeling responsible, in a way, for poor Dudley's passing!" he told the playwright's mother shortly after the last rites.

"You couldn't mean that," Mrs. Carver returned with composure and assurance, looking Ziegler in the eyes. "Carver respected your ideas and aims, Arnold."

He shifted his stance uncomfortably. "I know that, but it was I who advised him to write the autobiography," he admitted. "I couldn't foresee that the acceptance of the manuscript would send him off on a spree!"

The woman looked oddly at Dudley's friend. "So it was you who was responsible for that terrible

Laval Seeking To Send France into War on Axis Side

Informed Sources Make Sensational Statement in Switzerland

By CHARLES FOLTZ, Jr.

LES VERRIERES, SWITZERLAND, at the FRENCH FRONTIER, Oct. 23 (Wednesday) (AP)—Pierre Laval, right-hand man of old Marshal Philippe Petain in the Vichy government, is negotiating with Germany for a possible declaration of war on Britain in return for a definite and easy peace between France and the Axis, informed travelers reaching here declared today.

The Laval scheme, these sources said, calls for such a declaration with the promise that France will lose only Alsace and Lorraine, Nice, Tunisia, and Jibuti.

Marshal Petain either has rejected or will reject such a proposal, these sources said, but Laval is pictured as still negotiating in occupied Paris, even though members of his camp are reportedly afraid that much of the French army, navy and air force will refuse to go openly to war against Britain.

There also were persistent reports that Petain and Adolf Hitler would meet soon, but these were thus far without confirmation.

"September Morn" Is Aid to "September Eve"

CHICAGO, Oct. 22 (AP)—Finding a similarity between an old case involving the famous nude painting, "September Morn," and the "September Eve" case at issue, Municipal Court Judge Francis Borelli today dismissed charges of indecent dancing against six night club entertainers.

The girls were arrested on the night of Sept. 10 by officers who said the raid was made at the direction of Mayor Edward J. Kelly. The police contended that the girls didn't have "a stitch on." This the defendants denied and they offered scanty costumes in evidence.

In outlining his decision, the jurist reported that the Appellate Court had ruled some years ago that exhibition of the "September Morn" canvas was not indecent.

Vote Before Coming To Work, Leland Says

HAMILTON, N. Y., Oct. 22 (AP)—"Vote before you come to work—or don't come to work," reads the sign James Leland, Hamilton business man, has placed for all his employees to see.

"In this critical period it's our duty to prove to the rest of the world that we can make democracy work," Leland explained.

"Voting on election day is one of the most important methods of proving it. My employees are all going to vote—just to prove they are good Americans."

Rifle-Pistol Club Elects Officers At Frostburg

Henry Yates Named President of Sportsmen; Home Guards Formed

FROSTBURG, Oct. 22 — The Frostburg Rifle and Pistol Club, one of the most aggressive sportsmen's organizations in this city, has elected officers for the ensuing year as follows:

Henry Yates, president; Francis Cunningham, vice-president; Gurney Beaman, secretary; Joseph Freeman, treasurer; Howard Brode, range officer; and Robert Brain, publicity officer.

Following the election of officers, held Thursday, the club members, all of whom have volunteered to act as home guards, took the oath of allegiance.

Having finished its summer schedule of shooting matches, which were held on the new range on the Hansell farm near Hoffman, the club began its winter schedule at Cold Spring range, Luke, Friday evening.

In anticipation of receiving applications for membership in the club since it has assumed the duties of a branch of the Maryland Home Guards, it is the request of the club that any one desiring to join get in touch with any of the newly-elected officers or call at Gurney Beaman's radio shop, East Main street, here.

The club is planning to hold shooting matches during the winter months. Both rifles and shotguns will be used and valuable prizes, including a large number of turkeys, will be awarded to the winners of each match. The matches will be held at the rifle range on the Hansell farm near Hoffman.

Revival Opens

The revival services which began this evening at the Assembly of God church, Broadway, under the direction of the Rev. H. B. Kelchner, pastor of the Methodist church, will be continued during the entire week.

"Dot and Homer" who formerly broadcast as the "Joy Bringers" over the radio from Greensburg, Pa., will be present Saturday and Sunday evenings and present special musical programs. The services are open to the general public.

Initiation Planned

Frostburg Chapter No. 221, Women of the Moose, will observe Mooseheart Day Thursday, with a class initiation in honor of Mrs. Pa L. Conroy, state graduate representative. This event is being held throughout the United States and Canada in observance of the birthday of James J. Davis, founder of Mooseheart.

Miss Billie Ott, chairman of the women's committee, will have charge of the program, which will be presented by Mrs. Edna M. Engle, Donnell Ott, Miss Mary Night, senior agent, and Miss Ott. The terminating feature of the program will be a covered dish supper.

Frostburg Briefs

On account of the absence of the Rev. Walter V. Simon, who was called to Hagerstown on account of the death of his mother, the usual mid-week services at St. Paul's Lutheran church will be omitted.

Coal Company President Is Charged With Embezzling Mine Union Funds

BECKLEY, W. Va., Oct. 22 (AP)—An incident charging embezzlement of $667.75 in union dues collected by the Lecony Smokeless Fuel Company was returned by the Raleigh county grand jury today against Harry E. Moran of New York, president of the concern.

The dues were "checked off" between October, 1938 and March, 1939 under an agreement with the United Mine Workers but were not turned over to the union, the indictment charged. The company operates at Besoco.

Adult Education Classes Formed At Grantsville

English Class Organized; Home Economics Course To Be Offered

GRANTSVILLE, Oct. 22—A meeting to organize an adult English class was held at the school last evening. Because of conflicting activities many persons wishing to enroll for this course were unable to be present. Another session is to be held from 7 to 9 o'clock next Monday evening however, when those desiring to take advantage of this opportunity to improve their English may still enroll.

The course of study, under the direction of Miss Emma Caulk, is comprised of twenty-four lessons and will include a number of important phases which are not always covered in some of the regular school courses. The course is entirely free of charge, except for minor materials.

Tomorrow (Wednesday) evening, from 7 to 9 o'clock, Mrs. Julius C. Renninger Jr. will organize an evening class in Home Economics at the school. This course is open to persons sixteen years of age or over who are not in school, and there is no charge except for materials used. The course will include instructions in clothing construction and designing and offers an opportunity for homemakers to construct wardrobes most suitable to their family needs.

Tax Rate Unchanged

A special meeting of the mayor and town council was called last evening to set the levy for 1940. The rate will remain the same as heretofore, 80c per $100. The minimum assessment on furniture was placed at $125 and on an automobile at $100. The county assessment was used in arriving at the total assessed value.

There was some discussion at the meeting in regard to changing the fiscal year here, which heretofore has started in April. The matter may be placed before the legislature for permission to make a change to bring it in line with the county fiscal year.

Christian Endeavor Rally

At the meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society this evening final plans were completed for the county-wide Christian Endeavor meeting which is to be held at the Reformed church here at 8 o'clock tomorrow (Wednesday) night. Carroll M. Wright, Boston, Mass., executive secretary of the Society of International Christian Endeavor, will be the speaker of the evening.

Special music for the occasion will be furnished by the Rev. A. M. Wright, pastor of the Salisbury (Pa.) Reformed church, who is also well known as a guitarist, and a group from New Germany. The meeting is open to any persons or societies in Garrett county who are interested in the Christian Endeavor work.

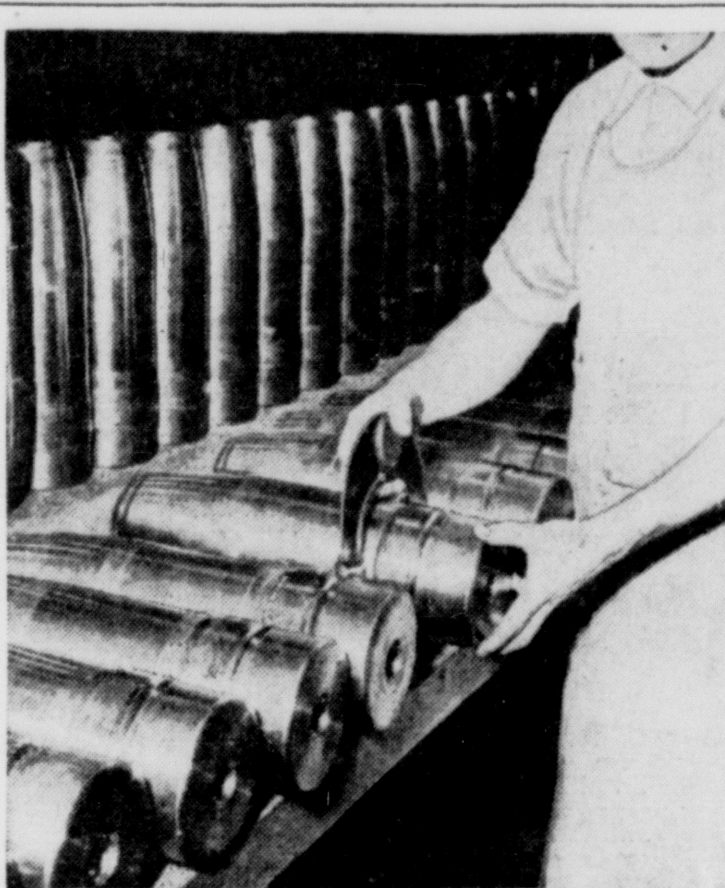

Before going to Boston, Mr. Wright was the field secretary for the Maryland Christian Endeavor Union. He will spend most of the day tomorrow touring Garrett county and contacting the groups and societies in the various communities. On Thursday Mr. Wright will address a similar meeting at the Bethany United Brethren church at Cumberland.

Grantsville Briefs

A class of approximately thirty members will be initiated by the Crellin degree team at a meeting of Grantsville Camp No. 41, Woodmen of the World, Monday evening. This is one of the largest classes ever admitted to the camp at one time, and State Manager J. D. Sollars, Washington, is scheduled to be here for the occasion. The meeting will be held at the W.O.W. hall at 8 o'clock.

George Marinko, Dunbar, Pa., was arrested near here yesterday by State Trooper Carl G. Storm on charges of having no registration and in his possession, parking on the highway, and failing to remove obstruction he had placed on the highway. In Trial Magistrate court, he was found guilty of all three charges and remanded to the county jail in default of a $20 fine, but was (Continued on Page Fourteen)

New, shiny shells for the United States army's 155-millimeter guns are pictured above being measured on the production line at the Frankford (Philadelphia) arsenal. The shells must measure to a hairline. These shells have yet to be filled with explosives and capped.

Morgan County Farm Exhibit Slated At Berkeley Springs November 7-8

Country Life Group Sponsors Grain, Hay, Poultry and Egg Show

PAW PAW, W. Va., Oct. 22 —The Morgan County Country Life Association announces that the second annual Morgan county grain, hay, poultry and egg show will be held November 7 and 8.

Exhibits will be on display at the Berkeley Springs town hall, and the program to be held in connection with the event will be given in the court house.

About the same class of exhibits will be on display as last year. Very few changes will be made in the premium list. Poultry will be judged chiefly on the basis of production standards. Egg classes will be added to the premium list. Exhibits will include both open class and achievement project exhibits in poultry and corn.

The two-day affair will culminate with a farmer's achievement banquet to be held in the basement of the United Brethren church November 8 at 6 p. m., when awards will be made, including those for the 1940 tomato growers' achievement project.

The name of the 1941 "Tomato King" will be announced. Prizes and awards will be jointly sponsored by the Bank of Berkeley Springs, the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, Kiwanis club and the Country Life Association.

More Polio Cases

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 22 (AP)—The State Health Department announced today that reports from Greenbrier, Lincoln and Taylor counties had increased the number of infantile paralysis cases for the week ended October 19 to 29. This is the lowest weekly figure since July. The two cases in Greenbrier, one in Lincoln and one in Taylor brought the year's total to 362.

Conservation and Game Problems Discussed at Moorefield Parley

Officials of Four States Thresh Out W. Va. Border Questions

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., Oct. 22 —Conservation and game problems arising along West Virginia's borders were threshed out today in a series of round table conferences held by officials from West Virginia, Virginia, Pennsylvania and Maryland.

Approximately sixty game wardens, rangers and state conservation officials participated in the discussion about law enforcement along the borders, farmer cooperation, conservation, game and fish propagation, bag limits on various types of game, the handling of law violators and boundaries.

The conference was aimed at providing working agreements covering the subjects.

A similar conference is to be held by West Virginia and Ohio officials later.

West Virginia Conservation Commissioner H. W. Shawhan held a separate conference with E. Lee LeCompte, state game warden of Baltimore, Md., relating to problems between the two states over the Potomac river boundary.

It was said that no definite conclusions were reached, although the groundwork was laid for further discussion on mutual questions.

West Virginia was represented by Conservation Commissioner H. S. Shawhan and Chief Game Protector H. Prentice Parley; Pennsylvania by Field Supervisor Rollin Heffelfinger of the Pennsylvania commission, Irwin, Pa.; Virginia by Max B. Hart, executive secretary of the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries, Richmond; and Maryland by LeCompte, state game warden.

P-TA at Midland Votes To Join County Council

Possibility of WPA Hot Lunch Project at School Is Discussed

MIDLAND, Oct. 22 —Approximately 100 parents were in attendance at the second monthly meeting of the Midland school Parent-Teacher association in the school auditorium last night.

One of the most important pieces of business transacted during the evening was the unanimous decision to affiliate with the County Council of Parents and Teachers. Affiliation will also be made with the state and national organizations.

Mrs. John Lancaster, president of the county council, was present and gave an outstanding explanation of the history and work of the local unit. She stressed the importance of the state convention to be held at Frostburg State Teachers college the early part of November and cordially invited the Midland parents to participate.

Miss Ruth Weber and Mrs. Lloyd Shaw, of the WPA hot lunch project, were also present and gave the association members enlightening information on the procedure of participating in the project. Due to the large number of pupils remaining at the school during the noon lunch period it was decided to further investigate the possibilities of establishing the lunch project here.

Pupils of the various rooms participated in the program, which was of a patriotic nature.

Mrs. Robert Clarke, secretary and treasurer of the association, suggested she should relinquish her position since she no longer had children in the Midland school. The members of the association were unanimous in their decision of having her continue her work.

Mrs. John Robertson, president presided during the business meeting.

Judge Refuses Change of Venue In Elevator Shaft Murder Trial

WELCH, W. Va., Oct. 22 (AP)—Criminal Court Judge E. C. Marshall today refused to order a change of venue for the murder trial of mining engineer Fred B. McClure with the comment "there is no reason for people to form opinions from newspaper reports."

Previously, the court had denied a defense motion to continue the case in which McClure is charged with killing his 42-year-old employer, G. Dewey Hyllon, last July 10. Hyllon's body was found at the foot of an elevator shaft in a Welch office building.

Defense counsel asked that the case be tried elsewhere on the ground that it would be impossible to obtain an "unprejudiced and unbiased" jury because of published accounts of the case.

Hyndman Cops Act To Curb Vandalism

Two Youths Released after 'Lecture,' Halloween Warning Given

HYNDMAN, Pa., Oct. 22—Considerable petty vandalism has been perpetrated in Hyndman this autumn, evidently by half-grown boys bent on mischief of the wrong sort.

Two of them were haled before Burgess Lloyd Christner Monday night by Chief of Police Harry Tharp, charged with shooting out several windows with an air-rifle. The boys confessed and expressed regret over their actions. Upon their promise not to repeat the offense and their further promise to pay for the glass they had broken, they were dismissed with a paternal lecture, but without fines or further punishment.

With the near approach of Halloween, municipal authorities are exercising extraordinary vigilance to prevent damage to property.

Hyndman Briefs

Much interest is being shown in athletic circles over the football game scheduled here Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock between the Robertsdale high school team and the Hyndman high school eleven.

Sportsmen of Hyndman and vicinity are eagerly awaiting the official opening of the hunting season, slated for 9 o'clock on the morning of Friday, November 1. High school will be adjourned for the day in order to give both teachers and students a chance to join in the day's sport. Grade schools will convene as usual.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Poorbaugh were hosts Monday evening to a dinner sponsored by C. V. Fuller and his assistant, Miss Telma Poorbaugh, representatives of the Health-Craft Association of America. The following guests were present: Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Hyre, Mr. and Mrs. George Bush, Mr. and Mrs. Oranda Shaffer, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Mangus, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Study, and daughter, Judith Anne, and Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Hite.

Mrs. Walter Johnson, Berlin, Pa., and Miss Margaret Airmann, Jennertown, Pa., will be here tomorrow (Wednesday) at 7:30 p. m. at the borough hall to organize a Ladies' Auxiliary to the Volunteer Fire Company. All women of Hyndman and vicinity are invited, as well as men who are interested. Refreshments will be served.

The Hyndman Volunteer Fire Department were called out at 9:20 p. m. yesterday to extinguish a fire in a Dodge truck owned by Robert Willison and parked at his home on Church street. Mr. Willison and his neighbors had the fire under control when the firemen arrived. Damage was estimated at $100. Fire is believed to have been caused by either a short circuit or a smoldering cigarette. The seat and roof of the truck were badly damaged.

Arrangements are being completed for Hyndman's Halloween celebration which will be held under the auspices of the Hyndman Volunteer Fire Department Wednesday evening, October 30. Plans have been made for a huge street parade, with prizes to be given for various types of entries. Announcement of the various prizes will be given later. The firemen, following the parade, will hold a street dance on Washington street and will also have a refreshment stand on the front porch of the Algonquin hotel on that street. One of the attractions will be free cider, furnished by the firemen.

Wilson Sweeney Heads 'Roll Call' At Mt. Savage

Jarilla Henckel and Maud Houck To Assist in Red Cross Drive

MT. SAVAGE, Oct. 22—It was announced today that Wilson Sweeney will head the annual Red Cross roll call in this section with Miss Jarilla Henckel and Miss Maud Houck as members of the assisting committee.

The town will be divided into sections, and workers will be appointed to make a house-to-house canvass in each section. There will be approximately twenty of these volunteer workers, who will be selected in the next few days. A chairman will also be appointed for each of the local schools. Red Cross posters have been posted in all of stores and other business places.

Miss Henckel, chairman of the Red Cross in this community, stated that several more pieces of clothing, including socks and sweaters, have been completed for the war refugees.

Misses Catherine and Peggie O'Rourke and Miss Dorothy Blake will entertain the Junior Auxiliary of the Red Cross at a scavenger hunt Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the home of the Misses O'Rourke.

Methodists Meet

The first quarterly conference of the Methodist church was held last night in the recreation hall of the church Dr. Harry Evald, of Hagerstown, district superintendent, presided at the meeting and explained the new unity of the Methodist Episcopal, Methodist Protestant and Southern Methodist churches.

The division of these churches came about over the slave question during the Civil War, and since then they had continued as three separate units until the past year, when they again united.

At this meeting, William Holsinger was appointed director of men's organizations.

Mt. Savage Briefs

A meeting of the Women's Christian Service organization will be held Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the recreation hall of the Methodist church. This will be the first business meeting of the group, and the newly-elected officers will preside.

The Holy Name society of St. Patrick's church will attend the daily Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at St. Mary's church, Cumberland. This rally will

Georgetown Too Tough for Big Time Teams

Twelve Men Have Never Met Defeat With Hoyas Squad

Team Won 19 and Tied One in Last 20 Games under Hagerty

Coach Does Not Have Old Drawback of Small Squads Now

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (AP)—Georgetown's powerful Hoyas, unbeaten since Nov. 20, 1937, have 12 players—all seniors—who've never known the sad sensation of losing a college football game.

The Hoyas have played their last 20 games without defeat and with only one tie, a 13 to 13 battle with Syracuse last year. During that stretch they have scored 462 points to their opponents' 66.

Maryland handed them their last defeat, 12 to 2, when Jack Hagerty was just beginning to get his coaching system going.

The 1938 season produced a husky, fast bunch of sophomores and Hagerty knew he had something when the Hoyas coasted to a 51 to 0 victory over Hampden-Sydney. Georgetown went on to win the rest, downing among others Manhattan, Bucknell, Temple and Maryland.

The 1939 season opened with a 3 to 2 victory over Temple. Augie Lio kicking a field goal with 45 seconds left to play. Then came the Syracuse tie. The following week the Hoyas dumped Bucknell 13 to 7.

Another big fast bunch of sophomores joined the team this year and Georgetown continued along its shutout trail, blanking Roanoke 66 to 0 and Temple 14 to 0 and trouncing Waynesburg College, 36 to 12, and Virginia Polytechnic Institute, 46 to 4.

Until this year Coach Hagerty did not have a large enough squad to hold regular scrimmages. Now his job is a little easier.

There have been complaints that Georgetown doesn't play a tough enough schedule. To these H. Gabriel Murphy, graduate manager of athletics, replies:

"We'll play them. The trouble is they won't play us. My desk is full of letters from so-called strong opposition which can fit Georgetown into its schedule."

"Whizzer" White Showing Form of All-America Days

Takes over First Place as Ground-Gainer in Pro Circuit

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (AP)—Byron "Whizzer" White, Detroit Lions quarterback, once again is showing the form that earned him All-America honors in 1937 while playing for the University of Colorado.

White, who was the national pro league's champion ball-carrier as a freshman with Pittsburgh in 1933, took over first place as the circuit's leading ground-gainer, according to the weekly statistics released today.

He has picked up 247 yards in 83 attempts, dropping Brooklyn's rookie, Banks McPadden, to second. McPadden has gained 240 yards in 53 attempts for an average of one yard over Tuffy Lee-man, New York Giants veteran.

Sluggin' Sammy Baugh of Washington continued to improve his forward passing efficiency average. He now has completed 58 out of 81 tosses for 814 yards and an efficiency mark of 71.6 per cent. He also leads the league with eight touchdowns passes and tops Davey O'Brien of Philadelphia in yards gained on passes by 81 yards.

There is a four-way tie for scoring honors involving Ward Cuff of New York, Dick Todd of Washington, Don Looney of Philadelphia and Carl Mullenax of Green Bay. Each has 30 points. Cuff has scored two touchdowns, four field goals and six conversions and the others five touchdowns each.

Cuff also is in a three-way tie for field goals with Clarke Hinkle of Green Bay and Armand Nicolai of Pittsburgh.

Leemans Injured; May Miss Battle

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Torn vertebrae ligaments will keep "Tuffy" Leemans, New York Giants' pro football ace, out of action for at least a week, it was revealed today. The Giants play the Chicago Bears here Sunday.

Leemans was hurt in last Sunday's game with Pittsburgh but didn't think it was serious until he returned to his hotel. He was taken to the hospital where Dr. Francis J. Sweeney pronounced him definitely out of action.

Boston, Oct. 22—Ulysses J. Lupien, Jr., the Harvard first baseman recalled by the Boston Red Sox from Little Rock, is a left-handed French-Canadian.

PENN STAR, REAGAN, IN ACTION DURING BIG SCORING AFTERNOON

Here is Frank Reagan, No. 28, Pennsylvania's big star, in action during the massacre of Princeton, 46 to 28, in Philadelphia. Reagan, who this week duels Tom Harmon, of Michigan at Ann Arbor, scored 21 points by himself to tie the all-time Penn scoring record for a single game. Reagan got away from this Princeton tackler, seen in this picture.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—So the collegians should take a few lessons from the pro footballers, huh? They should learn to spice up their games with colorful offenses, open up a little, take chances, score some points.

Score some points! My long-suffering friends, some of the results we have been reading lately look like market quotations, and you have to look twice to be sure A. T. & T. isn't playing Bethlehem Steel, Penn 46, Princeton 28, and they say score some points! Marquette 27, Creighton 27, and the college games can't match the pro contests for thrills!

When the pro first developed growing pains there was much comment to the effect that the boys who openly swapped body-checks for pay-checks were going to steal the play away from the collegians. The pros' dip-doodle style, with its trick passing, running punts, back-work, defenses, and try-anything-anywhere offenses was what the fans wanted, yes sir.

Maybe a little of the criticism of the college game was warranted. At any rate, the pros were getting bigger scores and bigger crowds. Suddenly, and with no reason you can put your finger on, the situation has changed and the college games have developed into score-keepers' nightmares.

There have always been big scores in college football, but they usually were one-sided scores, the result of unevenly matched teams.

One possible reason for the abundance of the scoring, while high, isn't all done on a one-way street. Both teams seem to be taking the attitude of: "To heck with the defense; let's get some points." The result is a rising generation of fans who leap screaming to their feet a dozen times a game as some free-wheeling pass grabber or super-charged fullback ambles over the goal.

One possible reason for the abundance of mutual scoring this year might be the unusual crop of custom-built backs, lads like Harmon and Kimbrough and Alderice and Reagan and McCullough, just to dip into the cream.

You can't hold fellows like that down, and when a pair of them go into action on opposing teams something is going to give, and it's usually the respective defenses.

Off and on in recent years, during epidemics of scoreless ties, or low-scoring games, there was complaint that the defense was getting ahead of the offense.

Now, for some inexplicable reason, the offense seems to be getting ahead of the defense, but you don't hear any kicks from the customers.

The southwest long ago realized that the more wide-open the game and the more scoring, the more the fans liked it. The object of the game was to score touchdowns, and by gum that's what the southwest boys intended to do, even if they had to take chances that would turn a conservative coach into a jitterbug.

Maybe the rest of the country is just catching up with the southwest.

Baker Says Uncle Sam May Have Best Ball Club

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 22 (AP)—Del Baker, the Sherwood, Ore., boy who made good as manager of the Detroit Tigers, predicted today that "Uncle Sam may come up with the best ball club of all next year."

He admitted the draft had unsettled baseball conditions and that he would have to forego his usual winter of fishing to be at Tiger headquarters. He said Detroit "re-building plans were in the air because of conscription."

No High Scoring Back Is Standout On Cornell Team

Teamwork Marks Play of Big Red's Number One Team of Nation

By BOB MCCORMICK

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 22 (AP)—The college football team the nation's experts consider "tops" is without a single high scoring back.

Teamwork rather than individual scoring such as that of Michigan's Tom Harmon and Penn's Frank Reagan is keeping Cornell at the top of the 1940 gridiron standings.

Coach Carl Shavely presents a well-balanced offensive. Almost any player on the team sports editors of Associated Press papers consider the current "best" is a likely touchdown threat.

Jim Schuck, at end, is the Big Red's high scorer to date with 19 of 112 points amassed in victories over Colgate (34-0), Army (45-0), and Syracuse (33-6).

Schuck, whose three touchdowns have come on the receiving end of passes, kicked one point after touchdown to give him a one-point edge over Mort Landberg, 170-pound fullback, and Lou Bufalino, a substitute halfback.

Thus far, Cornell has scored mostly through forward passes. Against Colgate, the Big Red completed 12 of 17 tosses for 239 yards and four touchdowns; against Army 13 of 19 for 201 yards and three touchdowns and against Syracuse last Saturday 15 of 24 for 310 yards and four touchdowns. That makes a total of 40 of 66 passes completed in three games for 750 yards, or one of the best averages ever recorded.

Exceptional, too, is the fact the leading candidates of the nation's number one team for possible All-America honors are linemen—and a back who hasn't scored and whose name has yet to make the headlines. They are Nick Drahos, an All-America tackle last year; Howie Dunbar, a guard; Schuck; and Walt Matusczak, the quarterback.

Irish-Wildcat Tilt Is Sell-Out

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 22—The Northwestern-Notre Dame football game is a month away, but already Dwyer Stadium in Evanston is sold out for the contest, it was announced today. The game is scheduled for November 23.

Capacity of the stadium is 48,000, and interest in the game obviously is built upon the unbeaten records of both elevens to date.

Whether both squads will be unbeaten up to November 23 was, however, a big question. Before then, Northwestern must meet Indiana, Minnesota, Illinois and Michigan, and Notre Dame in the same period tackles Illinois, Army, Navy and Iowa.

THE ROAD AHEAD

How many teams will remain untied and unbeaten when the roll call of autumn is over?

Anyone who starts trying to figure in October what the answer will be in late November might easily be rated with those who are just a bit comical in the conk. But as someone has said before, "Pools rush in and win where angels fear to tread."

The main idea is to look at the road ahead—what teams the untied and unbeaten have yet to play. Here are the remaining opponents of the leading lights—

Tennessee — Florida, L. S. U., Southwestern, Virginia, Kentucky, Vanderbilt, Kentucky the toughest test—a good rest—should be a canter.

Mississippi—Arkansas, Vanderbilt, Holy Cross, Tennessee Teachers, Mississippi State, Miami, Mississippi State the hardest game—not much left.

Purdum — St. Mary's, North Carolina, Purdue, Arkansas, N. Y. U. Should be a Ram romp—the Ram is better than good.

Cornell — Ohio State, Columbia, Yale, Dartmouth, Pennsylvania, Ohio State and Pennsylvania, both tough barriers.

Northwestern — Indiana, Minnesota, Illinois, Michigan, Notre Dame, loaded with dynamite.

Pennsylvania — Michigan, Navy, Harvard, Army and Cornell. Three good ones left—Michigan, Navy and Cornell. No easy road.

The Others

Minnesota — Iowa, Northwestern, Michigan, Purdue, Wisconsin — two to beat—Northwestern and Michigan.

Michigan — Pennsylvania, Minnesota, Northwestern, Ohio State. Too much to ask — the roughest of the stretch runs — murder.

Notre Dame — Illinois, Army, Navy, Iowa, Northwestern and Southern California. Navy and Northwestern main barricades — a good chance to make it—one of the best.

Texas A. and M. — Baylor, Arkansas, S. M. U., Rice, Texas, Rugged competition but I believe Homer Norton's Texas Aggies, plus Kimbrough and Thomason can just about make it. Matty Bell disagrees.

Stanford — Southern California, U. C. L. A., Washington, Oregon State, California. I doubt the capture of the Washington corral.

Boston College — Georgetown the main barrier. Their big splash together, November 16th. This will tell the story. The winner should remain unbeaten.

Columbia — Not with Cornell ahead. But still good.

Clemson — The 39 to 0 conqueror of Wake Forest that beat North Carolina 12 to 0 must get by Auburn and Tulane. A good chance. A badly underrated team.

Navy — Penn and Notre Dame among others. Can't be done.

Texas — Rice, S. M. U., Baylor, T. C. U., Texas A. and M., Florida. A trifle too much to meet, especially Texas A. and M.

The Unbeaten

My guess at this waning October roundup is that the following teams in order have their chance to remain untied and unbeaten—

1. Fordham 2. Tennessee 3. No-

Frederick Countian Fined for Turf Gamble

FREDERICK, Md., Oct. 22 (AP)—John S. Foster of Brunswick was fined $1,000 and costs today in circuit court after he pleaded guilty to charges of knowingly allowing horse betting on his premises.

Judge Arthur D. Willard, who imposed the fine, suspended an additional six months' jail term until the second Monday of May, 1941, declaring "whether the suspensions will be executed will depend upon the future conduct of the defendant."

In passing sentence the court warned that "we will not tolerate race track gambling in Frederick county," and added that "if the sentence imposed today is not sufficient, it will be necessary to impose the maximum" to prevent this in the county and "to keep people from flocking here from out of the state."

Terrors Vary Drills In Prep for Maryland

WESTMINSTER, Md., Oct. 22 (AP)—Westminster Maryland's football squad covered the whole range of attack and defense in a two-hour session today pointing toward Friday night's game at Baltimore with the University of Maryland.

Coach Charlie Havens reported that with the return of Smith, backfield man injured in the Mt. St. Mary's game, all 32 of his squad members would be available for action.

Although Western Maryland's 1940 record surpassed Maryland's College Parkers have a 17 to 12 edge in the 29 games the two have played since 1889.

this fall. Any team that is called upon to face Washington, Nebraska and Ohio State in the three opening games has the hardest assignments.

This schedule meant that Minnesota had to be ready and on razor edge in September, and that Minnesota also had to be ready and on edge for hard-driving November games. These are important points of team value.

In looking over your Bowl selections it might be remembered that such teams as Notre Dame, any Big Ten team, Cornell and Pennsylvania are not interested. They're out.

Outside of the West Coast, with Washington favored, the main Bowl selections will be from Tennessee, Texas A. and M., Fordham, Mississippi, Boston College or Georgetown, Clemson, Nebraska, and S. M. U. or Texas, and Georgia Tech is always wanted.

The bidding this season will be keener than usual. There will be a grand scramble in late November for the ten teams needed to make up the Bowl list, on which so far the main spots have been the Rose and Sugar Bowl—with the Orange and Cotton moving up.

But it is still a long way to the Bowl menu. A lot more debris will be cleared up this Saturday, especially at Ann Arbor and Ithaca.

Rader To Start For Carnegie

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 22 (AP)—Chuck Rader, who has been serving as a reserve quarterback, will probably start at right halfback for Carnegie Tech against Case here Saturday. He was moved up as a substitute for halfback George Muhs, one of three Tech players injured in the Notre Dame game.

Michigan To Try New Grid Tricks

Screwy News of Gridiron Is "Hot" In Initial Issue

Sub Runs Wrong Way then Reverses and Scores Touchdown

By BILL BONI

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (AP)—Being the first issue of 1940's "screwy news of the gridiron," which aims to prove that football isn't all do-or-die blood and thunder:

Lou Grant, after coaching at the College of Puget Sound, went to Eatonville (Wash.) high school this fall to inaugurate football. It didn't shape up as a very happy assignment, since none of his candidates had played the game before.

There was one ray of hope. Grant found one boy who took to the game naturally. He was the only one who didn't throw the ball like a baseball, and he could kick, run, tackle and block. Grant figured he might build some sort of team with one player and ten lads who at least were willing.

Came Friday afternoon before the first game, and the coach sought out his star-in-embryo to find out how he felt.

"Oh, I feel great, Mr. Grant," was the reply. "But there's something I ought to tell you. If we have games on Saturdays, I won't be able to play—I'm a Seventh-Day Adventist."

No doubt you've seen fights for goal-posts break out into free-for-all slugging matches. They had one after the Mühlenberg-Lafayette game. But the Mühlenberg band quickly put a stop to that by the simple expedient of playing "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Lou Little tells this one of Columbia's game with Maine, in which a Maine lineman, Barrows, son of the governor, was raising hob with a lot of Columbia players. Finally, well along in the game, an anguished wail floated down out of the Columbia stands:

"Will some Columbia player please get that Republican out of there?"

A Roy Riegels, doubled in spades, bobbed up at Fayette, Iowa, the other day in the person of a Buena Vista College substitute end named Case. Buena Vista was playing Upper Iowa and, well into the last quarter, Case intercepted a forward pass on the Upper Iowa 43. He ran all the way to the 5 before his mates caught up with him to tell him he was going the wrong way.

"Well, make up your minds which way you want me to run," said the disgusted youngster, as he reversed himself and the field for the winning touchdown.

To end on the note in which we began, the captain of a small Massachusetts high school team which also was playing football for the first time met the rival captain and the officials in the center of the field.

The referee, as usual, tossed a coin, then turned to the lad and asked:

"Kick or receive?"

"Hell, no," said the boy. "We'll scrimmage."

Texas Schoolboy Scores 108 Points

Stephenville, Tex., Oct. 22 (AP)—They call little Barney Welch a football team and here's why:

In five games he's played 200 minutes and scored 108 points. In one game he ran up 42 points.

Other members of the Stephenville high school team have a combined total of 91.

Welch, who runs like a sage hen and is slippery as an eel, is the leading scorer among 20,000 Texas school boy griders. He may also be topping the nation's point-makers.

Maryland Brushes Up On "Air Conditioning"

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 22 (AP)—University of Maryland football coaches are striving for "complete air-conditioning" of the squad in anticipation of Friday night's game with Western Maryland in Baltimore Stadium.

Culling the statistics of last Saturday's game with Florida, the coaching board agreed that Florida's rode to victory through the air, and at the same time, Maryland's passing game was considerably less than adequate.

In addition to this, Coach Al Healy scouted Western Maryland against Bucknell Friday night and reported that the Terrers are well balanced on both offense and defense, with heavier accent on defense.

These factors all point to the probability of continued drill the rest of this week in passing and pass defense, although the ground game is not being neglected.

Court To Announce Verdict Today In Riley Case

Defendant Named as Man Who Performed Illegal Operation

A slender 22-year-old girl stared at a heap of shiny surgical instruments and medical supplies heaped on a table in circuit court yesterday as she told her operator of a Cumberland cleaning and dyeing establishment performed an illegal operation on her last May.

The young married woman, already a mother, said she discovered she was going to have another child last March. She asked girls in her department at Celanese what she could do. They said they knew a man she could go and see.

She went to see the man named the evening of May 21, she said. He told her to come back the next morning and bring $55. She got the money and walked to his cleaning establishment the next day. She was taken to a "little room" on the first floor. The operation was performed.

Became Very Ill

After that she walked home. That night she became very ill. The young woman testified. A physician was called. She was taken to Memorial hospital. Another physician was called in and there was a consultation. Considerable medical care and careful nursing was required to bring her around.

That, briefly, was the story told by Mrs. Ronelda E. Sapp, two physicians and other state witnesses yesterday in the case of the State versus William Thomas Riley, 63, operator of a Cumberland cleaning and dyeing establishment.

Riley denied the charge, said he had never seen Mrs. Sapp prior to yesterday. He said surgical instruments confiscated from his car and cleaning establishment by officers with search warrants were "old relics" given to him by the late Dr. Edward Harris. Medical supplies confiscated were merely for first aid purposes, headaches and other minor ailments, he said.

Cross Examined

By the time the defense was finished with Riley, the afternoon was wearing along. On cross examination, State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris started his questioning. The examination seemed to be going in a desultory manner. People in the crowded court room sat back, eased up.

The state's attorney casually picked up a pint bottle of fluid from the stock of supplies on the table. The bottle contained a drug frequently used in conducting illegal operations. The drug is also used for other purposes as well.

"Where did you get this?" the state's attorney asked.

Riley replied that it didn't belong to him, that the place once when he was going someplace just before he died. That was about three years ago, the witness said.

"The label on the bottle is dated Dec. 7, 1938," Harris said.

State Checks Up

County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle left his chair beside Harris and left the court room. He came back several minutes later. A few minutes after that he was in the witness box.

"According to the records at the Board of Health, Dr. Edward Harris died January 22, 1935," Boyle told the court.

Last witness sent to the box by Defense Attorney Edward J. Ryan was Michael S. McGeady, employed at the Dingle Cleaners and Dyers. Ryan had him summoned when Riley testified that McGeady was always the first man at the establishment in the morning and the last to leave at night.

McGeady said he went to work at 7 a. m., locked up at 6 p. m. He said he had never lost any time since employed there and that he

Flood Control Group To Meet

Committee Will Discuss Woodland Management Here Tomorrow

A sub-committee of the Potomac River Flood Control Survey Committee will meet in the office of Ralph R. McHenry, county farm agent, at the courthouse Thursday afternoon, October 24.

The main topic of discussion will be woodland management and its effect on water runoff control.

The group will discuss the possibilities of legislation to regulate woodlands, long term federal loans for use in woodland expansion, public ownership of woodlands, formation of a soil conservation district, taxation adjustments so as to lower taxes on woodlands not being cut and taxing only the harvested wood crop.

Another important discussion will take place on the proposed channel improvements in the county.

Among interested men who will attend are A. J. Fitch, W. H. Johnson, J. D. Liebau and Albert O'Neal, of the Elvits Creek section, William Loar, N. S. Yoder and Ernest Reid, of the Potomac River section, W. L. Frazier and W. T. McLaughlin, of the Town Creek area.

In addition Ralph R. McHenry, county farm agent and H. C. Buckingham, district forester, will attend.

Sloan Says Veterans Were Disregarded in Draft Appointments

David W. Sloan, local attorney, yesterday protested to Governor Herbert R. O'Connor for what he terms "latter's disregard of the membership of the Veterans of Foreign Wars when he made appointments to the four draft boards for Allegany county."

Sloan expects to receive a reply from the state's chief executive today.

The telegram sent last night, was as follows:

"Hon. Herbert R. O'Connor, Annapolis, Md.

"In selecting members for the Allegany county draft boards and the permanent clerks thereof, I would certainly appreciate knowing your reasons for utterly disregarding the membership of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. I am in fact advised that not a single one of your appointments to these positions was even a veteran of the World War."

"DAVE SLOAN"

As regards to the appointment of clerks no official announcement has been made by the governor. Sloan, however, has been informed that several men mentioned for the posts which pay $150 a month, are not war veterans.

Musical Program Will Feature Legion Dinner

Keyser Legionettes, Band To Entertain Tomorrow at Legion Home

Vocal selections by the Keyser Legionettes, national championship women's quartet, and a concert by the American Legion band under the direction of Joseph M. Fradiska, will feature the annual membership dinner of Port Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock at the Legion home, Harrison street.

The Legionettes, sponsored by Boyce Houser Post No. 41, of Keyser, W. Va., won the national championship for the fourth time September 23 at the American Legion convention in Boston, and made a hit at the Maryland Department convention dinner here in August.

Won Three Times in Row

The quartet, composed of Mesdames Marie Parley, Anna Montgomery, Virginia Kolkhorst and Nyla Greenwald, won national titles at American Legion conventions in 1936, 1937 and 1938. Ineligible to compete last year because of the fact they had won three times in a row, members of the quartet retained their title at Boston last month.

A concert will be given by the band on the porch of the Legion home.

Vincent P. Ingram, general chairman of the recent Department convention, will be toastmaster at tomorrow's affair.

James Blaine Fitzgerald, past Maryland Department commander, will speak on "Membership" and J. Nelson Tribby, Maryland Department adjutant, will deliver a talk on "Resolutions."

Commander Claude Deal, of the local post, will hand over the mortgage to Frederick A. Puderbaugh, homes' corporation chairman, for the "burning of the mortgage" ceremony.

300 Expected To Attend

Three hundred persons are expected to attend the turkey dinner which will be prepared by Newton Parish.

John Nelson is chairman and Wesley H. Abrams is co-chairman of the membership committee.

The Party and Eight Society will hold a meeting at 7:30 o'clock at its club rooms in the Legion home tomorrow evening.

Homemakers To Meet

The Potomac Valley Homemakers club will meet today at 11 a. m. at the home of Mrs. Robert C. Wilson, Rawlins.

A luncheon will follow the business session.

Celanese Official Tells Rotarians How Industry Is Doing Its Part

Technology Has Not Reduced Opportunity for Expansion, Allen Says

The notion that technology has reduced opportunity for expanding industry and for more jobs was refuted in the course of an address given yesterday before the local Rotary club by Edward R. Allan, personnel manager of the Celanese Corporation of America.

The point was made in answering the query as to whether industry was doing its part today.

Forty percent of the enormous business new done by the duPonts, Allan said, consists of new products developed within the last few years.

Thirty percent of the sales of the General Electric Company, it was cited, consists of new products that were absolutely unknown ten years ago.

Forty-three per cent of the sales of the Johns Manville Company consists now of products developed within the last decade.

Cites Celanese Development

Coming closer to home, Allan

Frostburg Negro Is Found Guilty On Double Charge

Albert Cole Is Sentenced to 30 Years for Attack on White Woman

Albert Cole, Frostburg negro, yesterday was found guilty of assault with intent to rape and robbery and sentenced to twenty years in the Maryland Penitentiary on the first count and to ten years on the second, the sentences to run concurrently.

The verdict and pronouncement of sentence was made by Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan after a brief deliberation with Associate Judge William A. Huster in chambers.

Cole was charged with attacking and robbing Miss Laverne Rankin, of Frostburg, a five-and-ten-cent-store employee. Two physicians said he was sane. Defense counsel argued the incident was the result of temporary insanity induced by the Cole's drinking ardent spirits for the better part of a whole day.

"There isn't much difficulty in arriving at a proper verdict in this case," Judge Sloan said. "As to intent, you can judge that by what people do more than what they say. Acts speak louder than words."

The court said Cole was not of a mental pattern to be altogether responsible but added that he "ought not to be loose" to endanger other women.

If he requires treatment, he will get it in the penitentiary, Judge Sloan said.

J. Hodge Smith, counsel for the defendant, stressed the lack of specific intent to rape in his closing argument before the court. Smith claimed Cole was at least "hazy" mentally and had gone to a field to sleep it off. He attacked the Rankin girl just for more money, Smith alleged.

David Kauffman, another defense attorney, urged a sanity examination regardless of the verdict.

Lifelong Maryland Democrat Announces Support of Willkie

A lifelong Democrat, Charles B. Alexander, who was treasurer of several Democratic campaigns in Maryland in other years, has announced his support of Wendell L. Willkie in the coming presidential campaign.

"I supported Mr. Roosevelt in 1932 on the basis of his pledges and platform," Alexander wrote in a letter to Ludlow H. Baldwin, of the Associated Willkie Clubs of Maryland.

"Soon after taking office he abandoned these. Many of his early supporters, including Mr. Willkie, felt this to be a betrayal not only of the Democratic party but of the country at large. This is my own belief."

"Fool Some People"

"So long as Mr. Roosevelt can continue to spend borrowed money, he can fool some of the people some of the time. But the day of settlement must come. It will be an evil one."

"I would like to think that Mr. Roosevelt's policies come from honest but mistaken motives. Frankly I cannot. He strikes me as a man who, having gambled his stake, keeps borrowing from the bank rather than settling his losses and calling quits."

"Sham Inspection Tour"

"Certainly the third term hypocrisy and the sham inspection tours do not ring of either sincerity or statesmanship."

"I shall vote for Mr. Willkie. I believe his election is one hope of restoring opportunity and insuring freedom. I believe, furthermore, that all real Democrats who are loyal to true Democratic party principles must work for Mr. Willkie's election through some such organization of Democrats as the Associated Willkie Clubs."

Allegany Countian Will Have His Case Reviewed

Robert Spoungale, of Allegany county, serving three years for rape, will be one of seven-six convicts who will have their cases reviewed in Annapolis tomorrow by Parole Director Herman M. Moser.

Those registered are Mesdames Mary E. Edwards, Virginia Brown, Louise Holland, Lewine Weaver, Mary Gilpin, Gladys Darr, John Dorsay, Elizabeth Jackson, Charles Pope, of Ridgely, and the Misses Vera Edwin, Ritchie Rawlings, Mae Washington and Genevieve Jones.

There are openings for additional registrations for the class which will meet once a week.

Will of Martha Stafford Filed in Orphans' Court

The last will and testament of Martha Stafford, who died October 15, was filed in Orphan's court yesterday.

A son John William Stafford, was named executor and also was given a bequest of $500.

The entire residue of the estate was bequeathed to five other sons.

Permit Is Obtained For $3,000 Dwelling

The Cumberland Improvement company Monday obtained a permit for the construction of a one-story frame dwelling, 30 by 34 feet, with concrete block foundation, to be erected on lots 38 and 39 in block 18, Ridgely avenue. The cost is estimated at $3,000. S. Russ Minner, local architect, furnished the plans.

GOLDEN WEDDING SMILES — Pictured above are Mr. and Mrs. Henry O. Barnard, of Corriganville, who celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage last night. They were guests of honor at a reception given in the auditorium of St. John's Reformed church and the large four-tiered cake, surmounted by a miniature wedding couple, was the center piece of the banquet table. The Ladies' Aid society of the church served the feast which was attended by several hundred friends and relatives. A program of songs and instrumental music was given by various guests. Both Mr. and Mrs. Barnard are hale and hearty despite their age.

Game Officials Of Four States Will Co-Operate

Wardens Pledge To Work as Unit at Banquet in Moorefield

Game conservation officials of four states gathered in Moorefield, W. Va., yesterday as guests of the West Virginia Conservation commission at a dinner meeting and reached an agreement whereby wardens of the states of West Virginia, Virginia, Pennsylvania and Maryland will co-operate as a unit in enforcing game and fish laws and running down law violators.

The meeting, called by Major H. W. Shawhan, of Charleston, director of conservation for the State of West Virginia, was the first of its kind ever held, and attracted fifty executives and game wardens from the four states.

Speakers on the program included Major Shawhan, Prentiss Parley, of Charleston, W. Va., chief game protector, L. Lee Compton, Maryland game warden, Richard T. Norris, chief deputy of Maryland, and John Hart, chairman of the Virginia Conservation commission.

Among the thirteen Maryland game officials present were George Shields, district warden, and Lloyd W. Cook, assistant district warden, both of Garrett county; Joseph A. Minke, of Cumberland, Region No. 1 Game Warden; Battle Mixon, of Cumberland, district warden, and Francis H. Ruge, of Frostburg, assistant district warden; Benjamin Phoebe, Region No. 2 warden; Albert Crampton, district warden of Washington county, and Ernest Vaughn, Maryland Game Technician.

Gateway Chapter

NEWS readers will recall that a few days ago that this paper published an article to the effect that United States Senator Millard Tydings, contrary to published reports by columnists, would not endorse a third term for President Roosevelt.

Gateway has received copies of two letters, one written Senator Tydings by Percy W. Phillips, of Washington, D. C., and the other a reply to that letter, which clearly states the senator is not for a third term.

"I recently read a statement to the effect that it was believed you would probably come out with some statement before the election in support of the re-election of President Roosevelt," Mr. Phillips wrote. "Recognizing the right of every man to his own opinion, I nevertheless hope that this statement has no basis in fact."

"As one of many independent Republicans who supported your campaign two years ago, I believe that the issue between Mr. Willkie and our New Deal president is substantially that which was involved in your own campaign, aggravated in this instance by the demand of the president for a third term after violating every platform pledge on which he was elected."

"You know the issues better than I. I think I might say to you, however, that I know there is a large group of Republicans in Maryland who are planning to vote for Senator Radcliffe primarily because he had the independence and intellectual fortitude to manage your campaign in the face of presidential opposition. It would be my belief that if you should now come out with any form of support for the campaign of President Roosevelt, Senator Radcliffe would be the loser."

"It is not often that I thus indulge myself in letter-writing, but many of us feel very strongly about this matter."

Senator Tydings in replying to Mr. Phillips' letter said:

"Thank you for your kind letter of October 1."

"The reports which occasioned your letter were purely speculative. There was no statement or utterance of mine to justify them. In short, they had no basis of fact."

"My trip with the president was at his invitation, said to be on the nation's business, and so far as I was concerned that is all there is to the entire situation."

Stewart Is Appointed Labor Chairman for Red Cross Roll Call

A. Charles Stewart, of Frostburg, yesterday was appointed chairman of the labor organizations' committee for the annual Roll Call of Allegany County Chapter, American Red Cross, which will be inaugurated November 11.

Mrs. George Henderson, chairman of the Roll Call, also announced the appointment of Mrs. John E. Tritt as district leader of the Bowling Green section.

Sixth District Club Will Honor Johnson At Party Tomorrow

Officers and members of the Sixth District Republican Club have arranged to give a party Thursday night in honor of Walter P. Johnson, of Montgomery county, Republican nominee for Sixth district United States representative.

The affair will begin at 7:30 o'clock in the Knights of Malta hall on Prospect square, where the club has its meetings.

Officers state that the event will not be confined to members of the club but will be open to the general public, and a cordial invitation is extended to everybody who would like to meet Johnson to attend, regardless of political affiliations.

Not in Business Any Ten Years Defendant Says in Moonshine Case

"No sir, not that long," replied Defendant Robinson.

A few minutes before the state's two star witnesses in the case, Abby Lewis, 31, and Albert Rhodes, 30, both colored, had testified. Neither knew what month last month was, or at least they couldn't call it by name.

But both knew they bought a bottle of moonshine at Mr. Robinson's premises in Grape alley. It cost a quarter. Rhodes paid fifteen cents and Lewis ten but they split the bottle fifty-fifty.

"What Dead Man?"

"Don't you know a man was found dead down in that neighborhood not so long ago," the state's attorney inquired of Rhodes.

Spectators could almost see the cold chill that suddenly crept up Mr. Rhodes' spine. He rolled his eyes.

"Ah didn't see no dead man," the witness shuddered.

While the court obviously got a kick out of the proceedings the final decree was "guilty" and "ten days in jail" for Defendant Robinson.

Willkie To Speak Here at 2:55 p. m., Next Wednesday

Presidential Nominee Will Give 15-Minute Talk at Queen City

Lewis M. Wilson, chairman of the Allegany county Republican State Central committee, yesterday was notified that Wendell L. Willkie, G. O. P. presidential nominee, will arrive in Cumberland at 2:55 p. m., Wednesday, October 30, and will give a 15-minute talk from the rear platform of his coach which will be equipped with amplifiers.

The original plans called for Mr. Willkie to arrive here at 4 p. m., but a change in the time scheduled for his arrival was announced yesterday.

W. David Tilghman, Jr., chairman of the Republican State Central committee, has delegated the members of the Allegany county committee to handle all arrangements for Mr. Willkie's visit.

Several members of the State Central committee and candidates for the United States Senate and House of Representatives will leave Baltimore early on the morning of October 30 for Cumberland to officially greet Mr. Willkie and his party at the Queen City station.

Tilghman Heads Group

Heading the committee will be Chairman Tilghman, O. E. Weller, and Mrs. Lulu E. Powell, national committeeman and committeewoman, respectively for Maryland, former Governor Harry W. Nice, candidate for the Senate, and these congressional nominees: First District—Robert F. Duer, Princess Anne; second, Theodore F. Brown, Westminster; third, John A. Janetzke, Jr., Baltimore; fourth, Daniel Ellison, Baltimore; fifth, John N. Torvestad, Colmar Manor, and Walter P. Johnson, Germantown.

Other leading Republicans of Maryland also will make the trip here. It may be necessary for the "Willkie Special" to attach an additional coach here for the run to Baltimore.

Chairman Wilson yesterday said that a number of Allegany countyans have signified their desire to attend the Willkie meeting in Baltimore on the evening of October 30.

With all the contracts signed by Chairman Tilghman for use of the Fifth Regiment armory, the engineers, decorators and other artisans required will roll up their sleeves next Monday and prepare the huge building for Willkie's appearance before a capacity house and those unable to gain admittance will hear his address from the loud-speaking system installed on the armory plaza.

Armory Accommodates 14,000

Chairman Tilghman has been assured that the seating capacity of the armory will accommodate about 14,000 persons, with 1,200 of them being in the galleries. The only other reserved space, other than the stage, will be for the press and newspaper men traveling with the "Willkie Special."

The policy of the first-come-first-served will prevail at the Fifth Regiment armory and no seats will be reserved, nor will there be an admission. For those to arrive early a band will be present to play and entertain the "Willkie Guests."
